Naval expert sees fleets immune to mines, torpedoes

LONDON (AP) — "Flying boat" warships that skim at high speed over the sea on air cushions, immune to torpedoes and mines, may be economical alternatives to conventional ships, a British naval expert suggested today.

Military planners in the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Iran and other countries are beginning to view the air cushion vehicles (ACV) as best for high-speed troop and cargo transportation, according to Roy McLeavy, editor of Jane's Surface Skimmers.

"Since these vessels would cruise at a height above water equal to approximately half their beam or wing span, they would be invulnerable to torpedo attacks and mines and could approach coastlines beneath defensive surveillance radar screens," McLeavy wrote in the ninth edition of the authoritative reference book.

"In addition, their speed of 200-300 miles an hour, coupled with the multiterrain capability provided by an air cushion landing system, would give them an operation flexibiiity previously unknown in warship design," he said.

ACV's, unlike hydrofoils and hovercraft, rise as much as 25 feet above the surface, enabling them to ride over most kinds of terrain and stormy seas. The heightened air cushion cuts fuel consumption drastically compared with conventional air and sea craft, boosts their range and permits speeds close to those of planes.

Two American aerodynamic experts, John H. McMasters and Richard R. Greer of the Water Research Co. of Phoenix, Ariz., reported in a chapter in the book that they have designed a large "winged surface effect vehicle," with catamaran-style fins to increase stability and speed, that would be suitable as a cargo transporter, missile platform, long-range helicopter carrier and coastal patrol ship.

McLeavy reported that the Soviets have been testing a 400-foot-long ACV on the Caspian Sea since 1965. The craft has a 131-foot wingspan, a speed of 300 knots and operates 24½ feet above the water.

The U.S. Navy is drawing up plans for ship-size ACVs, known as "surface effect vessels." A prototype 2,200-ton "weaponized test ship" is expected to be built by mid-1981, McLeavy reported.

If successful, he said, the Navy plans to construct several 2,000-3,000-ton craft for use as convoy escorts, helicopter carriers and missile cruisers.

The ultimate goal, he said, is a 10,000-ton craft capable of 100 knots.

"The rapid growth of commercial and military applications will continue to improve the competitive position of both the ACV and hydrofoil," McLeavy added.

House sustains Ford income tax cut veto

Vote almost assures most will be paying higher taxes Jan. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today sustained President Ford's veto of a bill extending 1975 income tax cuts, virtually assuring that most working Americans will pay higher income taxes beginning New Year's Day.

The tally was 17 votes short of the two-thirds majority necessary to override a veto.

If the existing tax cut law dies on schedule, the typical worker's taxes will increase $3 to $4 a week starting Jan. 1.

Prior to the vote, House Speaker Carl Albert accused the White House of trying to "brainwash the Republicans" by telling them that they will get some kind of bill anyway.

Death of the bill means an automatic January jump in most Americans' taxes unless some emergency legislation is worked out between now and New Year's Day.

Ford opposed the bill on grounds it did not contain a provision imposing a ceiling on federal expenditures.

At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary William I. Greener said "the President obviously is pleased" by the vote.

Asked whether he had any contingency plans, Albert said, "None have been discussed with me." However, he was expected to talk to committee leaders and discuss the situation.

"My present inclination is to let them live with this. I can live with it ... I can take the heat.

"I think it is better politics to be strong in our attitude to the legislation. Mr. Rhodes (Republican Leader John J. Rhodes) may think otherwise. He may be fooled."

The vote came dramatically as the electronic scoreboard ticked off the tally. Republicans burst into applause when it became obvious the veto would be sustained. Democrats stood silent.

Shortly before the showdown, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., chief author of the bill, stood to tell the House "this is a very critical moment in the history of our country."

"If we suffer a tax increase in January, we are playing Russian roulette with the economy of our country. Failure to enact this legislation will have a major economic impact — let no one doubt it," Ullman said.

FIREMEN OVERCOME

Seven perish in posh N.Y. night club fire

NEW YORK (AP)—A four alarm fire flashed through a posh east side night club early today, killing seven persons, fire officials said.

"I was screaming not to panic, but inside I knew I was going to die," said Jean-Claude Baker, the master of ceremonies of the transvestite revue, "Zoo," an import from Paris showing at the Blue Angel.

The club, on the first floor of a five-story building on East 54th Street near Park Avenue, was gutted. Twenty persons were evacuated from apartments on the top four floors of the white brick and stucco building. The dwellings appeared to have sustained minor damage.

Six of the victims were dead when they were removed from the club. The seventh died en route to the hospital.

It was not known immediately whether any of the entertainers were among the dead. None of the victims was immediately identified.

Six firemen suffered minor burns and smoke inhalation. They were treated at the scene.

Two employes of the club, wandering aimlessly on the street before the smoldering building, appeared dazed and were covered with soot. Asked if they knew any of the dead, they nodded yes and walked away.

"At first nobody believed it was a big fire," Baker said, relating how the scene turned from gaiety to panic. "People said, 'Oh, let's see; its just a little fire,' and we thought we could put it out ourselves.

"Instead of leaving, everybody wanted to collect his coat, and some went to the ladies room.

Court refuses to hear appeal by Joan Little

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court today declined to hear Joan Little's appeal from a 1974 conviction for breaking and entering and larceny.

The court's terse decision means that as far as North Carolina courts are concerned, Miss Little's conviction and 7-10 year sentence stand.

Miss Little, who is black, was found innocent last summer of murdering a white jailer. In her widely publicized trial, she testified that she stabbed the jailer to ward off a sexual attack.

Senate military panel OKs Bush as CIA chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee voted 12 to 4 today to approve George Bush as director of the Central Intelligence Agency after President Ford ruled Bush out as a potential 1976 vice presidential candidate.

In a letter to Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Ford said that if Bush is confirmed for the CIA post "I will not consider him as my vice presidential running mate in 1976."

Bush, who told the committee earlier this week he was not seeking the vice presidential nomination but might accept it if offered, urged the President to make that decision, Ford said in the letter, dated today.

A White House aide waiting outside the hearing room while the committee discussed the nomination in closed session said that Wednesday night it became "clear there was no victory," leaving Ford with the choice of withdrawing the nomination or ruling Bush out as a possible vice presidential candidate.

2 young men get $1,500 in bold, local robbery

Pomona police today revealed that they have several leads they hope will lead them to the two young men who robbed the recently-opened McDonald's Restaurant at 2145 Murchison Ave. of $1,500 Wednesday.

The robbers, one armed with a revolver and the other with a 10-inch knife, forced maintenance man Gary L. Duesenbery, 19, to open the restaurant safe during the early-morning holdup. The pair earlier tied up two truck drivers who were at the restaurant making deliveries.

Duesenberry said he was working shortly after 4 a.m. when one of the robbers approached him from behind and threatened him with the revolver. The man, and his companion, entered through the back door which was open because of the deliverymen.

The victim said that the pair threatened to kill him if he didn't open the safe and when he told them he did not know the combination they forced him to call the store manager in Riverside to obtain it. One of the pair held the knife to his throat during the call.

After removing the cash from the safe and placing it in a McDonald's paper sack, the pair forced Duesenberry into a walk-in cooler and fled.

Police, summoned by the suspicious manager, found Duesenberry in the cooler and truck drivers Eduardo Manquerra, 27, San Gabriel, and Art Branscombe, 29, Riverside, tied hand and foot in the back room. The robbers used nylon stockings and electrical cord to bind them.

The robber with the pistol was described as a Negro about 25 years old, 6 feet tall weighing 180 pounds. He wore a tan leather jacket and dark trousers and had a medium afro hairdo.

Measles epidemic is expected soon

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The measles are coming. The measles are coming, say county public health officials.

Dr. Robert Gunn, head of immunization in the county Department of Health Services, said Wednesday that an epidemic of red measles is expected soon although the 121 cases reported so far is the lowest figure since 1969.

High school students students were especially vulnerable, he added, because many of them had failed to receive booster immunizations shots.

Firm may close 134 more stores

NEW YORK (AP) — The W.T. Grant Co., which is undergoing bankruptcy proceedings, has asked permission to close 134 more stores in January, according to sources in the retail trade. Grant would not confirm the new closings.

Currently, its operations are confined to the area east of Cleveland and north of Baltimore.

Montclair firemen save man's life

Montclair firemen dragged a 55-year-old Azusa man out of a smoke filled motel room to safety after a bed and mattress caught fire Wednesday night.

Garfield Landowski, 55, of Azusa, according to Montclair firemen, suffered third degree burns of his feet and ankles in the blaze at the Holiday Lodge, 9191 Central Ave. about 9 p.m. Landowski is listed in stable condition this morning at San Bernardino County Hospital.

Fire inspectors said that Landowski apparently fell asleep with a lighted cigarette that dropped onto the mattress.

They said Landowski awoke to find himself surrounded by smoke and flames and managed to crawl to the front door, where he passed out. When firemen arrived they found Landowski next to the door still unconscious. He was first rushed to Doctors Hospital for medical treatment and later transferred to the county hospital.

Fire inspectors reported that Landowski was fortunate he had time to crawl to the floor. Otherwise, he might have perished, they said.

The fire consumed the entire bed and mattress, burned into the carpet and destroyed the drapes in the room. Firemen estimated the damage to the room and its contents at $1,000.

600,000-gallon spill in Alaska pipeline

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (AP) — The company building the trans-Alaska pipeline was trying to pump oil back into storage tanks today from a 600,000-gallon spill, the largest in the state's history.

The fuel — either diesel or heating oil — spewed over two acres of frozen tundra of the North Slope oil fields near the Artic Ocean.

The spill came from eight interconnecting storage tanks that cracked following a 50-degree temperature change Tuesday night, according to Robert L. Miller, a spokesman for Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., builder of the pipeline.

Miller said the spill occurred Tuesday night or early Wednesday but was not discovered until Wednesday morning. State environmental officials said they did not learn of the spill until asked for comment by the news media.

The extent of any environmental damage was not immediately known.

The spill occurred at Alyeska's Slope Camp construction facility at Prudhoe Bay, a large complex on the northern tip of Alaska where oil development is taking place over several square miles.

Alyeska's camp is several miles south of the Arctic Ocean, but Alyeska officials said there was no danger of water pollution.

"I understand the fuel is contained in a two-acre area, the ground is frozen and it is very cold, so efforts are being made to collect the fuel and pump it back into the storage tanks with portable pumps," Miller said.

He was unable to say whether all the fuel could be recovered.

Miller said initial information indicated the spill was triggered by a faulty relief valve coupled with the rapidly rising temperatures.

"The tanks apparently were inadvertently over-filled at the time when the temperatures were around 40 degrees below zero," Miller said. "In a matter of 10 or 12 hours the temperature rose to 11 degrees above zero and the fuel expanded."

He said the relief valve malfunctioned and part of one of the tanks ruptured.

State Pipeline Coordinator Chuck Champion said the spill was the largest ever to occur in Alaska and the first major spill at Prudhoe Bay. A 65,000-gallon oil line leak at the Galbraith Lake pipeline camp last summer was the biggest previous spill recorded in connection with the construction of the $6.3-billion pipeline.

However, fuel spills are frequent on the pipeline project. Alyeska issues announcements of the spills several times weekly, and many have ranged up to several thousand gallons.

Environmental damage varies according to not only the extent of the spills, but also whether they occur in water, on delicate areas of tundra or in mountain areas.

Fromme takes life term screaming

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — ynette "Squeaky" Fromme, in a urtroom scene as frenetic and con-sed as her trial, was sentenced to fe in prison for trying to kill Presi-nt Ford.

The red-haired, 27-year-old defen-ant struggled with federal arshals, screamed at the judge and rew an apple at the prosecutor dur-g her sentencing Wednesday. The dge said she could not be rehabili-ted.

Miss Fromme, a follower of mass urderer Charles Manson, replied he could not be rehabilitated be-ause she had done nothing wrong.

"I'm satisified that you deserve a unishment as harsh as the deed you ontemplated," U.S. District Court udge Thomas MacBride said as he anded down the penalty. "You can-ot be rehabilitated."

"That's true," Miss Fromme screamed. "I didn't do anything wrong."

The sentence is the strongest the defendant could have received under a federal law against attempted assassination of a president. She is the first person to be tried under the statute.

She will be eligible for parole in 15 years.

The small, feisty defendant was convicted Nov. 26 of attempting to kill Ford when he visited Sacramento on Sept. 5. Secret Service agents said she pointed a .45-caliber pistol at the President from a distance of two feet as he shook hands with wellwishers along a walkway outside the state Capitol.

Miss Fromme demanded during the hearing Friday that Manson be freed and said society's lack of concern for the environment had forced her to act.

"You just said that the only way to get their attention is to do something drastic," she told MacBride.

"I have stood with a gun and said, 'Don't make me shoot' and you keep saying, 'Do it. Do it.' You are askin for it."

MacBride said after hearing evidence in the case he was "convinced that (Miss Fromme) could murder or would cause others to murder in a distorted conviction that only violence can save our natural resources.

"I would suggest to you that our most precious natural resource is a human life," he said. Killing the President, he added, "would have impoverished our nation."

After sentence was pronounced, Miss Fromme struggled with deputy marshals who tried to escort her from the room. She shouted "don't push" and as the door closed behind her, she let out a scream.

Her former roommate, Sandra Good, stood up in the spectators' section and shouted "you animals" as officers forced Miss Fromme toward the door.

Miss Fromme sat silently at the defense table through most of the early portion of the hearing as MacBride turned down arguments for a new trial. The judge then ordered her to stand before his bench for sentencing and asked the prosecutor, U.S. Atty. Dwayne Keyes, if he had anything to say.

As Keyes urged the judge to impose a life sentence, Miss Fromme pulled a red apple from underneath a robe she was carrying and flung it at Keyes. Her aim was good, and it struck him on the forehead.

She was quickly grabbed by deputy U.S. marshals as spectators gasped.

Keyes appeared stunned by the incident, but he said later he was not hurt.

"It was a soft apple," he said.

U.S. Marshal Arthur Van Court said the apple had been "part of her left-over breakfast." He said he and his deputies did not know she had it until she dropped it on the courtroom floor early in the hearing. He said it should have been taken away then but was not.

SENTENCED

Crime patrol inquiry finds no dangers

An informal investigation of the California Community Alert Patrol (C-CAP) has revealed no information detrimental to the Pomona Base of the organization, City Administrator Jerrold Gonce reported to the Pomona City Council this week.

The investigation, requested by the council several weeks ago when the Pomona C-CAP started an intensive membership drive, included examination of the organization's bylaws, interviews with the local officers, and talks with city officials in other communities where C-CAP has been in operation

Gonce said that from all the information he has received, local chapters of the organization tend to reflect the local leadership, and that he had received no viable information to indicate the organization is anything but what it purports to be: a voluntary, nonprofit effort by citizens to provide surveillance in their own neighborhoods and offer assistance to law enforcement and other authorities upon request.

In receiving the report, Councilman Benjamin Ochoa, chairman of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce crime committee, said the committee wants to work with C-CAP and other organizations in the community to help reduce crime in Pomona.

The investigation of C-CAP was apparently sought to end or confirm rumors that the organization might become a vigilante group or otherwise interfere with proper law enforcement practices.

Brown, businessmen talk jobs, economy

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The industrialist who chaired Republican Houston Flournoy's campaign for governor last year says he is impressed with Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

David Packard, the superfund-raiser for California Republicans and chairman of the board of Hewlett-Packard Corp., was among nine business leaders who met for 4½ hours Wednesday with the Democratic governor and his cabinet.

It was Brown's first state summit meeting with big business on jobs and the economy, and in Brown's words there were no "magic solutions" discovered and no broad agreement on any plan of action to create more jobs.

But Brown and the business leaders all said they were pleased, and found they had common goals. One measure of how they got on was that the two-hour luncheon meeting stretched to 4½-hours.

Packard was the only business leader who talked to reporters after the meeting, which included the presidents or board chairmen of Pacific Telephone, Bank of America, Southern Pacific and Standard Oil of California, among others.

"I was very impressed with what the governor has already done," Packard said, citing changes in government rules to reduce overlapping or contradictory regulation of business.

"He has a good understanding of the importance of jobs, of course, and of improving the economic climate for business without sacrificing some of the things that are important to the quality of life," Packard added.

"The most important impression I want to give you is we were all very impressed with what the governor has done," Packard said.

Brown said he believes he instilled in the business leaders more confidence in the goals of his administration.

"There was a feeling that the confidence level in government has an effect on the kind of investment that is made," Brown said.

Tunney against nuclear initiative

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. John Tunney is going to oppose the nuclear initiative on California's June ballot, but Sen. Alan Cranston will remain neutral, the Sacramento Bee says.

Under the nuclear initiative, construction of new nuclear plants would be prevented until safety guarantees were made.

"My problem with the initiative is that its effect would be to eliminate nuclear power," Tunney said in a Washington interview Wednesday with the Bee reporter Leo Rennert.

"While I think we need to strengthen current safeguards, I also happen to think we need atomic power."

America's industrial era fading?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American industrial era may be fading, leaving behind such traditional values as the work ethic, majority rule and limitless growth, a new study shows.

The study, called the Trend Analysis Program report, suggests that Americans are questioning the continuing viability of some of their major corporate, political and social institutions.

Work has lost much of its meaning for many Americans who find it no longer "necessary for physical survival, no longer satisfying for some who know they can be replaced by machines," the report says. It notes "lower productivity, more 'goofing off,' more looking to government and employers for financial security" as evidence of an eroding work ethic.

The report was prepared by a team of more than 100 life insurance executives and is intended to give companies advance notice on social and economic trends. It is distributed by the Institute of Life Insurance in New York.

The next two decades will be marked by economic, institutional and political turbulence, the group writes. Also, because of the emphasis on higher education, there are likely to be more college graduates than there are jobs for them.

"The greatest dislocations are expected to occur in the late 1970s and early 1980s, which will coincide with the tail end of cuts in the military supply and public sectors as a result of budget considerations. Less educated persons will be hardest hit, with higher educated personnel filling more of the clerical and support positions, and technology continuing to eliminate many menial jobs," the report predicted.

The report foresees a growing emphasis on reassessing the welfare system, housing and construction programs, transportation and tax allowances.

"While these programs were well-meaning, the necessary commitment, foresight and proper design were often lacking," the report says. It lists the examples of "patchwork solutions" to legislative and social problems resulting from quick, sometimes politically-oriented decisions such as "liberalization of criminal sentences without social and work support backups to reduce recidivism, desegration (busing) policies that ignore potential social side effects like urban exodus of the white middle class, construction of massive public housing complexes without creation of new job opportunities, only to have them become new ghettos."

The investigators wrote that many Americans are becoming alienated from the political process, resulting in low voting turnouts.

"The average, middle class American has become confused as issues become more complex, the political machinery bigger, the interest groups divided, the party platforms indistinguishable, and politicians with minority platforms elected because of three-way voting splits," they wrote.

To sign, or not to sign the energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After prodding Congress for a year to face the nation's energy problems, President Ford now must decide whether to sign a bill that would temporarily reduce fuel prices while phasing out federal price controls.

A Federal Energy Administration official said Wednesday that Ford apparently has tipped his decision on the energy bill to no one. But FEA chief Frank G. Zarb has recommended that Ford approve the measure as the best he is going to get from this Congress.

Zarb said Wednesday night he plans to meet with Ford today to discuss the bill, and he indicated the President may make an immediate decision on the measure. Asked if he thought Ford would sign the bill, Zarb said, "When I see him, perhaps you'll know."

A 58 to 40 Senate vote on Wednesday completed congressional action on the bill. In addition to cutting the price of gasoline and fuel oil, the measure would require manufacturers to gradually improve the fuel efficiency of new cars.

The measure also would allow the gradual lifting of government price controls on petroleum products over a 40-month period.

If Ford signs the bill, which runs counter to his own energy proposals, it would signal the end of a year-long fight between the Democratic-controlled Congress and the Republican President.

For American consumers, it could mean a reduction, perhaps almost immediately, of 2.5 to 3.5 cents per gallon in the price of gasoline and home heating oil. As price controls were lifted, prices would resume their climb sometime after the November 1976 elections.

Should Ford veto the bill, there is little chance Congress could override, leaving the nation with no controls on oil prices and no semblance of a national energy policy. Unless another period of temporary controls were imposed, fuel prices would be free to rise.

Eight Republicans, all from colder Northeastern states that are heavily dependent upon oil for heating, joined 50 Democrats in passing the bill. Thirty Republicans and 10 Democrats, nine of them from oil-producing states, opposed the measure.

Unless the bill becomes law, said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., its chief author, "we will see the nation's difficult energy and economic problems grow steadily worse: a return to double-digit inflation; continued vulnerability to the oil weapon from abroad and continued squandering of valuable energy resources at home."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., pictured the bill as "a setback in national efforts to become independent of foreign oil supplies.

"It attempts to roll back gasoline prices until we are safely past the 1976 elections, while creating price uncertainty for domestic oil and gas producers over the next three years."

In addition to continuing oil-price controls for the next 40 months, the bill would require auto manufacturers to produce vehicles by 1978 that average 18 miles per gallon, reaching 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985. The 1976 models average about 17 miles per gallon.

Also, major home appliances would have to be labeled as to their energy efficiency, with manufacturers required to improve efficiency by 20 per cent by 1980.

The bill also would create a federally owned oil reserve to protect the United States against another shut-off of foreign oil. The aim is to store the equivalent of a three-month supply of imports, up to one billion barrels.

It would also extend federal authority to require many power plants and large factories to switch from oil to coal for boiler fuel.

The bill would authorize $750 million in federal loan guarantees for small companies to open new mines to increase production of coal and provides partial federal funding of state conservation programs designed to reduce oil consumption by 5 per cent by 1980.

To qualify for federal aid, a state's plan would have to set lighting efficiency standards and maximum operating hours for public buildings and promote use of carpools and public transit. A state could add whatever conservation plan suits local needs, such as closing service stations on Sundays.

The bill also gives the president standby authority to ration gasoline and take other emergency conservation steps in case of an oil embargo. Such a plan could not be invoked without congressional approval.

JFK mystery woman

Former hubbie describes her

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I only knew her as a quiet, family kind of girl," said William Campbell, describing his ex-wife, Judith Campbell Exner. She has said she had a "close, personal" relationship with President John F. Kennedy.

Mrs. Exner told a San Diego news conference on Wednesday that while she had the relationship with Kennedy, she had similar relationships with alleged Mafia bosses Sam Giancana and John Rosselli. But she denied acting as a go-between between the Kennedy White House in reported plots by the Mafia and the CIA to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Campbell, whose credits include playing convicted murderer Caryl Chessman in "Cell 2455, Death Row," said he and the former Judith Imoor were married Oct. 25, 1952, when she was 18. They were divorced in Los Angeles April 2, 1958.

"I think I've only bumped into her twice at parties or charity affairs, and even then, it was just a case of hello and goodbye," said Campbell, who was accused of insisting on periodical leaves of absence from matrimony in the divorce complaint.

Campbell said when he married Judith "she had two brothers and two sisters and her parents. It was a typical American home."

One of Mrs. Exner's sisters is actress Susan Morrow, who was briefly married to Gary Morton, now the husband of comedienne Lucille Ball.

"I'd heard occasional rumors (about her relationship with Kennedy and the underworld figures) but I never gave them too much credence," said Campbell. "What mutual friends we had you could count on the fingers of one hand. How she ever met the President, I don't know. I'm completely nonplussed about it."

Campbell said his wife was "completely apolitical" and he doubted she could have had any role in any Castro assassination plot.

"She didn't have any deep convictions about anything at that time. If I was a Republican, she'd be a Republican.

A young La Puente man was arrested Tuesday and charged with murder in the alleged drug-overdose death of his wife, Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies were called to the Goldbloom apartment Monday at 3:30 a.m. by the victim's husband, Stanley, 20. When they arrived they found the victim dead, apparently of a heroin overdose.

Homicide investigators took over the case at that point and later booked Goldbloom on suspicion of murder. They charged that both Goldbloom and his wife had a "narcotics background," that Goldbloom assisted his wife with an injection Monday night at about 9:30 in the apartment and that she died early the following morning as a result.

A coroner's autopsy is planned.

A 32-year-old POMONA man was arrested in his Pomona home early this morning in connection with a series of residential burglaries in Montclair and Pomona, police reported.

Orie James Boone, 32, of 2475 Valhalla St., Pomona, according to Montclair police, is suspected of breaking into a Montclair apartment at 4554 Bandera St. on Dec. 12 and stealing nearly $3,400 in property including television sets, stereo equipment, a 10-speed bike, clothing and other items. Police said they recovered some of the items when Boone was arrested.

Pomona police are holding Boone for several burglaries in the city occurring in the past month.

Ford denies contradiction in Nixon pardon testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today stood by his testimony to Congress about his pardon of former President Richard Nixon. The Washington Post said Ford discussed the possibility of a pardon with Nixon's top aide, in apparent contradiction to the testimony.

"The President's position is that the facts were made clear in his testimony before Congress," White House Deputy Press Secrtary William I. Greener said in a statement issued today.

The newspaper said that reliable sources indicated Ford gave a private assurance to Nixon Chief of Staff Alexader Haig on Aug. 28, 1974, that a pardon would be granted. Haig also served Ford in the early days of his administration.

Ford announced his pardon of Nixon on Sept. 8, 1974, almost exactly a month after he took office following Nixon's resignation.

During an Oct. 17, 1974, House Judiciary subcommittee session, Ford was asked by Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., whether any other persons made recommendations to him to pardon Nixon, from the time he took office until the time he decided to grant the pardon.

Ford responded, "No other person to my knowledge made any recommendation to me from that time until the time that I made the decision about Sept. 6. Nobody made any recommendation to me for the pardon of the former president."

The Post, in a story by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, said former Nixon speechwriter Patrick Buchanon confirmed that Haig "strongly implied" that it was his advocacy that secured Nixon's pardon.

The newsaper also said that former Nixon counsel Leonard Garment, also on Aug. 28, 1974, wrote a memo urging that Ford pardon Nixon. However, it said its sources were unsure whether Ford has seen the memo.

13-hour surgery puts back man's fingers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Surgeons in a 13-hour operaon have successfully replanted two of three fingers a arehouseman lost in an industrial accident.

Michael E. Soares, 27, of San Jose, was to be discharged om Franklin Hospital today after doctors reattached his ft middle and ring fingers. His index finger on the same and, however, was so badly crushed in the accident that octors were unable to restore satisfactory blood circulaon.

Soares was injured Dec. 10 when a punch press at the eslie Salt plant in Newark amputated the three fingers bove the first joint.

In a 13-hour operation that night, surgeons used microurgery techniques and tiny instruments to reconnect eins and arteries barely 1-25th inch in diameter.

Soares was told Wednesday that, barring complicaions, his reattached fingers will be useable.

Massage parlor law OK'd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposed ordinance backers say would put alleged sex shops masquerading as massage parlors out of business has been given favorable preliminary approval by the City Council.

The council voted 11-0 Wednesday to approve a committee report instructing the city attorney to prepare an ordinance which would be, according to Lt. Robert Moulton, "a viable instrument to effectively regulate the massage business in the city of Los Angeles."

Moulton, a Police Commission investigator, said the proposed ordinance would establish testing procedures for massuers and masseuses as well as require health inspection of such business-es before permits would be approved.

The ordinance must be resubmitted to the Police Commission because the council added an amendment.

Students airlifted to safety

RIVERSIDE (AP)— Sixteen Biola College students, stranded for two nights in subzero temperatures in Little Tahquitz Valley near Idyllwild, were airlifted to safety by the Riverside Mountain Rescue Unit, authorities said.

Four of the 16 students, flown out in a helicopter Wednesday, were treated at hospitals in Hemet and Palms Springs and released, they added.

The students, who were attempting to scale Tahquitz Peak, became stranded when one of them twisted his knee. Sheriff's deputies said they were alerted by another of the students, who hiked to the Idyllwild fire station.

Round trip instead of one way

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was supposed to be a one-way trip for the illegal aliens, but the bus driver turned it into a round trip and faces criminal charges, authorities say.

Authorities said Donald J. Rossiter was paid to transport 20 illegal aliens to Tijuana, Mexico, but he then charged the aliens $50 apiece to turn around and drive them right back into the United States.

Rossiter, 39, of Stanton, was arraigned Tuesday on a charge of illegally transporting 20 alien women. Arraigned with him on a similar charge was Hector Pelletier, 30, of Culver City.

Authorities said Rossiter and Pelletier were both employes of Arrow Charter Lines, Inc., which holds a contract with the Immigration and Naturalization Service to transport deported aliens to Mexico.

OAKLAND (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura, arrested two months ago with Patricia Hearst, will probably be freed this week when Japanese-American supporters post a reduced bail of $25,000.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lionel Wilson reduced bail from $100,000 to $25,000 Wednesday, saying he was impressed by letters from Japanese-Americans willing to risk their entire savings to guarantee Miss Yoshimura's court appearances.

Defense attorney James Larson said her supporters have raised enough funds to meet the bail and he expects she will be released "within the next day or two."

Miss Yoshimura, an artist, is charged in connection with a Berkeley bomb and explosives cache found in 1972 in a garage the prosecution claims she rented. After 3½ years as a fugitive, she was arrested Sept. 18 with Miss Hearst in a San Francisco apartment.

Miss Yoshimura, 32, who smiled at about 50 supporters when she entered the courtroom, was moved to tears when the judge read one letter urging him to reduce bail.

The letter, from Mike Iwatsubo of Fresno, who had met the defendant only once, said he was willing to contribute his entire savings, $2,500, towards Miss Yoshimura's bail. He said part of the money was for his son's law school tuition.

"I risk this tuition for my boy because I know Wendy Yoshimura will not flee," said Iwatsubo's letter, in which he called Miss Yoshimura a "misfit" who had "awakened to membership in our Asian community."

After reading the letter, Judge Wilson concluded, "I am certainly impressed by the breadth of support presented in support of Wendy Yoshimura from so many substantial segments of the Japanese-American community." He also said he was influenced by a personal letter from Miss Yoshimura, which he did not read in court.

Miss Yoshimura said "yes" excitedly after the judge asked if she would accept bail under the following conditions:

—She must not leave the San Francisco Bay area without court consent.

—She must live in Berkeley with the family of Dr. Paul Takagi, a criminology professor at the University of California.

—She must make no contact with defendants or codefendants in her case.

Although Miss Hearst is not a codefendant in the charges pending against Miss Yoshimura, Larson said he would interpret the bail conditions to mean his client should not visit the newspaper heiress now held in the San Mateo County jail.

LIFE IN HIS HANDS — Toronto fireman applies mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to 4-year-old Gary Sopha as he carries him in his arms after the boy and his 63-year-old grandfather were found unconscious in their blazing Toronto home. Psychiatrists play vital role in hostage sieges

LONDON (AP) — Police waging a life-or-death battle of wills with persons holding hostages have a new ally, the psychiatrist.

In recent sieges in London and The Netherlands, the besiegers worked out their strategies in consultation with doctors who specialize in mental conditions.

Scotland Yard's adviser is Dr. Peter Scott, consultant forensic psychiatrist to the Home Office. A quiet man of 61, he endorses the "no deal" policy that is now standard in Britain.

"Once this is accepted, and the message must be thoroughly well demonstrated by now, the problem is not how or in what circumstances you are coming out but only when and whether alive or dead," he told The Observer.

Scott warned that each siege is different and that only a few generalizations can be made. But he said unless the gunmen get encouragement from outside their organization, the difference between the politically motivated captor and the common criminal diminishes rapidly as a siege goes on.

Scott also strongly favors frequent contact between police and the gunmen.

One leading British psychiatrist, Dr. William Sargeant, said Scotland Yard played "exactly the right game" to achieve the surrender of the four IRA gunmen who held a man and his wife captive in their London apartment for six days this month.

These were the guidelines, worked out after in consultation with Dr. Scott and taking into consideration the history of such sieges elsewhere:

1. Be tough. Refuse all demands and deals. Demonstrate that the area is blanketed with so much armed strength that any attempt at escape or rescue would be suicidal. Make clear that jail or death are the only alternatives for the gunmen.

2. Take all the time needed to talk to the gunmen, talk calmly and try to win their trust. Use psychiatric advice. Do not try to storm in.

3. Try to foster a relationship between the gunmen and their hostages. The more this develops, the less likely it is that the gunmen can bring themselves to kill their captives.

The Dutch government has consulted with three psychiatrists or psychologists in various sieges, including the Japanese Red Army raid on the French Embassy and the Scheveningen prison revolt last year, and the South Moluccan attacks this month.

Psychologists are reported stationed in the police control center facing the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam, where South Moluccans have been holding 25 hostages for two weeks. Two other mental specialists advised the government during the 12-day siege of a train hijacked by South Moluccans in northern Holland.

Dutch officials refuse to disclose the advice they get. But the principal responsibility of one of the psychiatrists, Dr. Hendrik Havinga, has been to reduce the strain on the Dutch police and troops keeping watch on the hijacked train and the consulate.

Church in drive on Communism

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic church has launched its biggest offensive against Communism in Italy since Pope Pius XII excommunicated Communist voters in 1949.

The executive council of the Italian Bishops' Conference stated in a declaration Monday that "one cannot be simultaneously a Christian and a Marxist."

They charged that Marxism leads "inevitably to some form of slavery" and added: "The profession of the Christian faith is incompatible with the adhesion to or support of those movements which, even in different forms, are based on Marxism."

Vatican sources said the declaration was a challenge to the Italian Communist party's proposal for a "historic compromise" admitting it to the coalition government dominated by the Christian Democrats, Italy's Catholic party.

L'Unita, the Communist party newspaper, said the bishops' statement was "a violent and disturbing attack on the free political determination of Christians." It said it "evokes times condemned by the conscience of the country," a reference to the Fascist era.

Sources at the Vatican said the bishops' declaration was approved by Pope Paul VI and reflected his fear that the Communists may win the municipal elections next spring in Rome, of which he is the bishop.

The Communists got a third of the votes in elections for 15 regional elections last June and now control or share in the control of the governments of every major Italian city except Rome and Palermo. In the regional election in Rome last spring, they replaced the Christian Democrats as the biggest party, winning 35 per cent of the vote to the Christian Democrats' 28 per cent.

After the militant anti-communism of Pius XII, the Church under Pope John XXIII took a more tolerant and conciliatory attitude toward communism. All mention of Communists or their supporters being excommunicated was dropped although the excommunication has never been lifted formally.

Pope Paul has continued Pope John's policy of conciliation toward the Communist governments of other countries that have large Catholic populations, including Poland and Hungary. But observers believe that the Vatican fears the Italian Communists would work for a drastic overhaul of Italian society that would infringe on the Church's privileges.

Hunters try to duck routines, frustrations

CHICAGO (AP) — Escape and release from everyday concerns are more important to duck hunters than any food they might kill, a California psychologist has concluded.

They "plunge into freezing swamps at dawn to bag symbols of success, not food," says his report in the December issue of Psychology Today.

While working for the National Park Service and the California Department of Fish and Game, the psychologist, Dr. John D. Copp, interviewed and observed duck and goose hunters. He gave questionnaires to 100 of them at the Delavan National Wildlife Refuge northeast of San Francisco.

Nearly two million hunters in hip boots "come plunging into marshes and mudflats or paddling along the creeks and ponds" in the United States between mid-October and midJanuary each year, he notes.

"Whispering to each other through chattering teeth, they stagger around in the predawn darkness, weighted down with a clumsy array of shotguns, shells, duck and goose calls, dog whistles, decoys and cameras, folding chairs, pocket hand-warmers, sandwiches and cans of beer," he adds.

Waterfowl hunters engage in the activity with "single-minded devotion and fanaticism," he said.

In reply to the psychologist's question, "Why do you hunt?," these answers were predominant:

—To escape from frustrating or boring work.
—To escape from routine or stifling family life.
—To socialize with other men of similar interests.
—To overcome the challenge of nature.
—To master a difficult skill.

The common theme, Copp reported, was escape and release, and "Not one mentioned killing for food as a principal reason."

"Very few Americans need to eat wild game in order to survive," he pointed out.

Many of the hunters continue to hunt even though they have not shot a bird in weeks, months or even years, he said, adding, "Some never eat the birds they kill anyway."

The birds most highly prized by the hunters are not necessarily the tastiest "but rather the biggest, most beautiful, intelligent, or sporty ones, such as mallard or pintail ducks, and white-fronted geese," Copp said.

"My three-year study strongly indicates that hunters look on ducks and geese not as items of food, but as advertisements of skill, measures of success," he said. "They are not food but trophies, something to get and display to their fellow hunters."

"If the cost of the bagged fowl is analyzed, Copp said, "filet mignon becomes cheap eating" by comparison. He points to the cost of ammunition, gasoline for the trip, the hunting license, dogs and other items necessary for the activity.

The hunters' rewards appear to be psychological.

"Like Indians, hunters more than the rest of us may be communing with nature's Great Spirit," the psychologist said.

Medicines a way of life on campus

DENVER (AP) — Fifteen years ago few schools would allow dispensation of so much as an aspirin. But today's schools commonly dole out prescription drugs as powerful as amphetamines, making the medicine shelf as much a part of school life as the blackboard or the gymnasium.

The phenomenon is nationwide, said Dr. John M. Lampe, executive director of medical services for the Denver Public Schools and a nationally known expert on school health.

"In virtually every one of our schools kids are getting medication," Lampe said. "The reasons are understandable and, I think, valid.

"We must keep kids in school, and it's not always the case that the mother and father are going to keep the kid there. A few years ago that was the case."

Most schools maintain lists of children to be medicated, he said, and only a doctor's prescription can put a child's name on the list.

Lampe said Denver's and other school systems with which he's familiar refuse to dispense medicine "unless we know what it is, who prescribed it and for what."

Aspirin remains the drug most often administered in schools, he said, but such drugs as barbiturates to control epilepsy have made their way to the "acceptable lists.

And, he said, two central nervous system stimulants, dextroamphetamine, or Dexedrin, and methylphenidate, or Ritalin, are relatively common.

No reliable figures exist as to the number of American youngsters taking Ritalin, for example, but most experts estimate it at 10 per cent of the nation's 30 million school children.

Although it is a stimulant, the effect of Ritalin is to allow an overactive child to focus his attention on constructive activity — essentially, to slow down.

Ritalin is prescribed for children with a condition called "minimal brain dysfunction," which usually manifests itself as hyperactivity that gives a child a short attention span or the like. Often such a child is disruptive in a classroom.

Dr. James Lewis, a neurologist with the University of Colorado Medical Center who has researched stimulant drugs, prefers the term "hyperactivity" to MBD.

Can't do much about California's joblessness

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's unemployment rate will remain above 9 per cent next year, and the state couldn't do much about it even if it tried to hire all the jobless, says a state official.

Martin Glick, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s director of Employment Development, said Tuesday the Brown administration has rejected the idea of a large-scale statewide government jobs program.

Glick's predecessor, James Lorenz, proposed such a program before he was fired five months ago.

"California alone cannot have a solution to the unemployment problem," Glick told the Assembly Labor Relations Committee.

He said a public works program in one state would attract jobless persons from other states. The Alaska Pipeline made little change in that state's unemployment, Glick said.

But Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino, said Glick's reasoning was a "copout" and accused the administration of "passing the buck to the feds."

Glick has proposed a $20-billion federally funded national job program, which he says would create 1.7 million private jobs. But he said a state program would have several drawbacks:

—At $8,000 a job, for example, an $80-million expenditure would buy only 1,000 jobs. To make a dent in the state's 910,000 unemployment level would require spending enough money to have "an extremely depressant effect on taxpayers," Glick said.

—Once large numbers of workers were added to the government payroll, "it would be difficult to ever remove them because you'd also be eliminating a service."

Goggin said he was "disgusted" at Brown's stance.

"My district has 20 per cent unemployment, and they don't buy the argument that it's the Republican administration's problem," Goggin said.

He said the state would be better off raising taxes for an $800 million public works program than asking utility ratepayers to pay $420 million to Atlantic Richfield Co. for natural gas explortation, in a deal recently approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

Glick forecast the 1976 unemployment rate at 9.1 per cent. Aides to A. Alan Post, the legislature's nonpartisan fiscal adviser, predicted a 9.2 or 9.3 per cent rate and an 8 per cent rate nationally.

Unemployment in California this year has averaged 9.8 per cent.

But Post said a "moderate" recovery from the economic recession will continue, despite a lingering slump in such key areas as housing construction.

Venomous snakes freed by vandals greet policemen

BALTIMORE (AP) — County police were greeted by hisses when they responded to a call at Biologicals Unlimited, Inc.

More than 100 venomous snakes housed by the Baltimore research laboratory were released from their cages by vandals and at least 14 other rare serpents were stolen Thursday night, police said.

"When we came in there were rattlesnakes and cobras all over the place," said Jack Kilmon, owner of the firm. A passerby alerted police to a broken window at the firm.

Convicted killer wins a second mental exam

Lee Donald Lakey, 24-year-old convicted killer almost three years ago of a young Pomona woman, is getting a second chance to remain at Atascadero State Hospital as a mental patient instead of being transferred into the prison system.

In an unusual action in the psychiatric division of Los Angeles Superior Court, Judge Marvin A. Freeman ordered Lakey re-committed to Atascadero State Hospital for a 90-day period of re-examination. If Lakey makes no progress during that period, he will be placed in prison.

In returning the young man to the hospital, Freeman granted a motion by Lakey's attorney, Joseph A. Dolan of Pomona.

Lakey was returned before the court as the result of a recent state Supreme Court decision which ordered that persons ruled mentally disordered sex offenders (MDSO) must be committed in a criminal court action instead of the civil process formerly used.

One difference is that a jury's verdict in a criminal trial of the issue must be unanimous and based on evidence indicating the person to be an MDSO "beyond a reasonable doubt." Under the civil procedure used previously, the verdict did not have to be unanimous and could be based on "a preponderance" of the evidence.

At the latest hearing, records of Lakey's stay at the hospital since his committment late in 1973 revealed that he had only a B rating as a patient, which indicated he was unamenable to treatment and had made no progress. They also showed a record of obstreperousness. Indications were that hospital officials wanted Lakey out of the institution.

Dolan, however was able to convince the judge and the district attorney's representative that Lakey should be re-examined and a report submitted to the court within the 90-day period.

Lakey, a bus boy who lived in Pomona, was charged with raping and murdering 19-year-old Cheryl P. Brown Jan. 14, 1973, in her apartment near his. The first trial ended in a mistrial June 4, 1973, with the jury deadlocked reportedly 11 to 1 for conviction of first-degree murder. The second trial ended Oct. 24, 1973, with an involuntary manslaughter conviction — the least serious offense the jury could hand down in the case.

After the conviction, which called for a prison term of from one to 15 years, the trial judge ordered a hearing to determine if Lakey was a mentally disordered sex offender. The hearing, under the old civil procedure, ended with the ruling that he was, and criminal proceedings were suspended and he was placed in a state mental hospital.

During that first MDSO hearing, the jury heard testimony from court-appointed psychiatrists that Lakey had a history as a peeping tom, procurer, male prostitute, self abuser, passive homosexual and obscene telephone caller.

Bodies of two found in Chino, Alta Loma

The bodies of two persons — one found off Carbon Canyon Road in Chino and the other in a clump of bushes in front of an Alta Loma church — have prompted separate investigations by San Bernardino County sheriff's deputies this morning.

Sheriff's homicide detectives said that the body of a 20- to 25-year-old man was discovered about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday by a Cal Trans weed abatement crew about one mile southwest of Peyton Drive in Carbon Canyon.

Detectives said that a preliminary autopsy was being performed on the man's body to determine how he had died. West End sheriff's deputies said that Tuesday night they received a call from the Anaheim Police Department that a woman caller had told them a body could be found in Carbon Canyon. The woman said the man had died about Dec. 12 from an overdose of drugs and was dumped in the canyon by his companions who had unsuccessfully tried to revive him.

Homicide detectives said this morning the body was identified as that of Thomas W. Pemberton, 26, of 15222 Hunter St., Westminster through fingerprints.

Meanwhile, deputies this morning reported finding the body of a 35- to 40-year-old woman in a clump of bushes in front of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at 9075 Baseline Drive in Alta Loma.

Deputies said it appeared the woman had been dead only a few hours. She was fully clothed and there appeared to be no signs of violence.

Rail worker collapses, dies

A Southern Pacific Railroad workman collapsed and died shortly after 7 o'clock this morning at First and Main streets, apparently of a heart attack, authorities said.

The victim, Allen Marshall, 61, of Ventura, was part of a crew working in the railway crossing at that location. Firemen attempted to revive him but he was pronounced dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

SANTA WORKS OVERTIME

Children who attend Lincoln Elementary School in Pomona and motorists along N. Garey Avenue were pleasantly startled to find Santa Claus directing traffic at the Jefferson Avenue crossing early today. Jingling a small bell and armed with his red-and-white stop sign, he carried out crossing-guard duties, shepherding all the children safely across Garey Avenue. The Santa was Tony Scariano, 68, the school's regular crossing guard. He will be back on duty in his red suit Friday morning. Scariano, a retired chef, has worked a year as a guard.

West End United Way hits 94% of the campaign goal

The West End United Way campaign closed officially Wednesday with 94 per cent of its goal attained.

Officials at the victory luncheon called the campaign "highly successful in view of major firm cutbacks" as they reported a total of $515,649 collected.

This helped a great deal in compensating for the fact that a number of industries and firms in the area have suffered major employe cutbacks, affecting the size of their donations to the current campaign, he said.

Division A, which included the larger businesses, closed its campaign with a total of $237,864, or 84 per cent of goal.

Other divisions and their totals are B, $95,030, 101 per cent; C, $30,833, 110 per cent; D, $22,946, 107 per cent; E, $84,857, 101 per cent; F, $15,080, 97 per cent; G, $19,753, 101 per cent; and Combined Federal Campaign, $7,227, 130 per cent of goal.

Belcher files for La Verne council race

La Verne Planning Commissioner Melvin Belcher has filed his candidacy for the City Council in the March 2 municipal elections.

Belcher, a professor of electrical engineering at Cal Poly Pomona, lives at 4991 Old Ranch Road. He and his wife, Barbara, have three children.

The candidate says he became interested in civic work about two years ago, and has seen the need for some improvements since he was appointed to the Planning Commission in April 1974.

He says his main projects are to do a "facelifting job of the downtown area," and to maintain a "good small town image for La Verne" by controlling the city's growth pattern more tightly.

Blecher has lived in the valley for the past 14 years and in La Verne for the past two years.

He is a graduate of UC Berkeley, and holds a master of science degree in electrical engineering from USC.

Osteopaths intend to keep treating patients

Osteopathic physicians and surgeons in California will continue to serve the health needs of their communities despite the current malpractice insurance crisis which affects medical doctors and surgeons, a spokesman announced today.

Dr. L. Arthur Moore, president of the Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons of California, said the executive committee has re-affirmed its traditional policy of providing health care without interruption and referring problems of finances to arbitration rather than work stoppages.

Park Avenue Hospital in Pomona will continue "business as usual" by its staff of osteopathic, allopathic and podiatric surgeons, according to Dr. Richard Eby, board chairman.

Osteopathic doctors urge the public and its elected officials to join immediately in assisting American doctors to maintain the high levels of expertise needed to insure continuing care without the harassment of unjustified interference, Dr. Moore said.

Walnut renews pact with county for aid

Walnut city councilmen voted 3-2 to renew a county contract under the Public Improvement and Housing Assistance Act at a special meeting today.

The contract permits the Los Angeles County government to act in behalf of the city in application of funds available through the federal legislation.

The city hopes to obtain approximately $12,000 for implementation of plans made this year for street improvement and sewers.

Councilmen Richard Laughter and Robert Lovemark opposed renewal.

"My concern was that we could agree to a project and complete it and then two or three years later the federal government could say we hadn't met housing assistance requirements and could ask for our money back," Laughter said after the meeting.

Lovemark wanted to retain city authority over improvement projects.

Postmortem retribution

Rep. Gilbert Gude, R-Md., says he will introduce a bill in Congress to expunge J. Edgar Hoover's name from the FBI's new building in Washington because of "the abuse of investigative and police powers" by the late director, chiefly his "smear campaign" against Martin Luther King Jr.

At least a couple other congressmen have indicated they will either introduce or support similar legislation.

It will be surprising, however, if this movement gets very far — not because of any great residue of admiration for Hoover on Capitol Hill, or in the nation at large, but because this sort of postmortem retribution smacks a little too much of the historical revisionism as practiced in the Soviet Union.

If we are to de-Hooverize the FBI's headquarters, to be logical about it we ought also to de-Johnsonize and de-Kennedyize a host of monuments bearing these men's names. Both presidents were responsible for, or permitted, abuses of the investigative and police powers of the nation's intelligence agencies.

Indeed, we could go back as far as Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, it has just been revealed, ordered the FBI to collect dossiers and make reports on Americans who opposed U.S. involvement in the war in Europe.

In the case of Hoover, far better had someone in Congress had the guts to stand up to this arrogant man while he was living. The fact that no one did, whether or not the rumor is true that Hoover "had something" on everyone in Washington, is a sorry enough commentary on the recent history of the Republic.

Recession recedes

In case you didn't know, "The nation's longest and most severe postwar recession ended in spring."

That at any rate is the judgment of economists with the Prudential Insurance Co., writing in the company's recently released Annual Economic Forecast.

Looking ahead to 1976, the economists expect a sustained business recovery, although expansion will probably be less vigorous than after previous postwar recessions.

Real growth should average 5.5 per cent as a "modest and hesitant' " improvement in consumer durables and housing are joined late in the year by an upswing in capital spending.

The unemployment rate will continue to decline and will reach a level below 7.5 per cent at the end of the year. A great improvement over the 9 per cent recorded at the depth of the recession, this will still be "an uncomfortably high level."

The experts also expect further progress in moderating inflation. Though 1976 will see something like a 6.5 per cent rise in prices, the forecasters don't look for a return to the 1973-74 type of inflation associated with booming world demand and materials shortages.

Overall, they say, "economic performance in 1976 should make a positive contribution to the nation's Bicentennial celebration."

Sharp corollary

We modestly announce the discover of Corollary 3,412 to Murphy's famous Law ("If anything can possibly go wrong, it will"):

"The probability of breaking a pencil is inversely proportional to the length of time that has elapsed since it was last sharpened."

Or in plainer language:

"As long as you use a worn-down pencil, you will never drop it on its tip."

Thoughts

Mark the blameless man and behold the upright, for there is posterity for the man of peace. — Psalm 37:37.

"Man's destiny for many millions of years to come is, so far as our present knowledge shows, in his own hands. It rests with him to decide whether he will plunge into disaster or climb to undreamt-of heights." — Bertrand Russell, English philosopher.

"For truly my words are not false; one who is perfect in knowledge is with you." — Job 36:4.

"He who would distinguish the true from the false must have an adequate idea of what is true and false." — Benedict Spinoza, Dutch-Jewish philosopher.

We who are strong ought to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves; let each of us please his neighbor for his good, to edify him. — Romans 15:1,2.

"Every great man is always being helped by everybody; for his gift is to get good out of all things and all persons." — John Ruskin, English essayist.

Patient insurance

Dear Editor:

We would like to offer our suggestion about the malpractice dilemma.

I noticed, while listening to Governor Brown, every one has been heard from on this matter except the real people who eventually will have to pay for this, the patients themselves. I believe the patient will have to flip the bill, no matter which way this matter is settled.

First, I'd like to ask a few questions:

1. What are the main purposes of malpractice insurance?
2. Why are the doctors carrying the burden of all this?
3. Who should be protected?
4. Why should doctors be placed in a general category just because statistics prove certain practices have a higher rate of risks?

If we were to answer these questions, I believe we would come closer to this solution.

We believe the patient should be allowed to purchase a temporary policy upon admission to the hospital or undertaking any risk treatment. If you review the boarding to an air liner, the passenger has an opportunity to purchase insurance in case of an accident whether it be the fault of the pilot or the plane. In case of an auto accident, most every one is covered by a non-insured policy. If an accident does occur, the victim has adequate coverage!

The driver who is at fault is still allowed to drive even though his insurance isn't adequate. I feel this same type of situation is present in our problem of doctor versus patient coverage. Why couldn't a patient be allowed to purchase adequate insurance? After all, isn't the main reason a doctor has coverage, is to cover situations which his income wouldn't cover in case of an incident involving his patient. I think the doctor could carry a low malpractice policy and the patient could carry adequate insurance of his own. Also, this would alleviate the real need for attorneys because the settlement would be judged by a referee committee made up of attorneys and doctors. This would also empty courtrooms.

This would allow the insurance company to deal with a doctor on a one-to-one basis instead of a general figure drawn from a bunch of statistics. For instance, if a doctor has a great number of patients filing claims, the insurance company could refuse the doctor's patients from purchasing insurance and then insist the doctor purchase a higher rate of malpractice insurance. I believe this would show a real reduction of needless practices by a doctor, because each patient would be aware of his doctor's record.

I'm sure these are only unbuffered suggestions, but with the proper buffering from you gentlemen, there are possibilities. I believe a patient has that right to be allowed to purchase adequate insurance in case his doctor doesn't have proper coverage. — Jarold R. Paxson, Ethel R. Paxson, Claremont.

Losing our innocence

Every day, it seems, we learn something new. We now know: Robert Kennedy authorized wiretaps on reporters from Newsweek and the New York Times, as well as on officials of a government agency, two lobbyists and a congressional staff member.

We now know: The FBI gave President Johnson material on seven newsmen from its files, as well as private data on Barry Goldwater. In short, going back to Franklin Roosevelt, a succession of American Presidents have used the FBI and CIA as though they were private detective agencies, above the law, for the purpose of investigating the private lives of their "enemies" or disrupting foreign governments as though they owned them.

Each day's newspaper brings new shocks. The daily evening news programs destroy another myth or another reputation. Men, long dead, are brought back to life by their evil deeds.

We are losing our innocence daily, as we learn that we did eagerly, if secretly, everything we said the other side did. We only did it, we said, because they did it too, and we had to stay even.

Americans always believed we were better than they, and now we know we're not. Does all this give us hope that we won't ever do it again? Or will we be doomed to repeat it over and over and over again, never learning the sorry lessons of the past?

Another fugitive is going home. This one is Robert Williams. And home, for him, is Monroe, North Carolina.

It will be 15 years since Mr. Williams has been to the town where he once led civil rights marches, and where the question of armed self-defense was first raised in the southern civil rights movement.

Long before the world either knew or cared for Eldridge Cleaver, Robert Williams was president of the Monroe chapter of the NAACP. Because local whites responded to his non-violent marches with beatings and bullets, he asserted his American right to engage in self-defense, and the national NAACP suspended and censured him.

In 1961, Mr. Williams took a white couple into his home to protect them from the expected crossfire of an attack from white vigilantes. When they were released unharmed, the couple yelled "kidnapping" and, in fear of his life, Mr. Williams left North Carolina and the United States far behind.

He lived in Cuba and China, but returned to America in 1969. Since then, he's been living quietly in Michigan.

Last month, the Michigan State Supreme Court refused to block his extradition, and he has said he will return.

Like Eldridge Cleaver, Robert Williams was a hero to a sector of American youth in the 1960's. But, unlike Mr. Cleaver, Mr. Williams had widespread support of his own community. He won this support because of what he did, rather than what he said.

Unlike Mr. Cleaver, Robert Williams has little faith that the American system of justice will see justice done to him.

Ford's campaign irks Demos

WASHINGTON — President Ford has always had a cordial, locker-room relationship with Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill. They have been able to trade political punches yet remain on good terms.

But as the weather has turned colder, the political climate has heated up. Some Democratic leaders are losing their friendly feelings toward the President.

He has hit them with more than 30 vetoes. He has campaigned against them up and down the land, accusing them of fiscal irresponsibility. He has raised a howl about the "can't do" Congress.

Now he has written a private letter to big-money men asking for contributions to unseat Democratic Congressmen next year. A copy of the letter has fallen into Democratic hands, and it is raising Democratic hackles.

"Since becoming President," declares Ford, "I have tried to achieve many things." He then offers an heroic account of his efforts to hold the nation together.

"As you know," he continues, "many of these efforts and other positive steps have been thwarted by a Congress heavily controlled by the Democrats. In some instances, the Congress has turned a deaf ear; in others it has written its own extravagant legislation . .

"What America needs is a Republican Congress working for Republican goals. Unless more Republicans are elected in 1976, inflation and excessive deficit spending will continue."

White House sources described the letter as a routine fund-raising pitch. But many Democrats on Capitol Hill believe the President is carrying partisan politics too far. This could lead to some jarring confrontations between the President and Congress next year.

MILITARY LAXITY: The new volunteer armed forces could be easily penetrated by spies, subversives, ex-criminals or anyone else who might be interested in a fraudulent enlistment.

This is the view of security experts who have told us the recruiting procedures are sloppy and security checks are inadequate. For example, 25 per cent of the enlistees' fingerprints are rejected as unclassifiable when they reach the FBI for filing.

The lax security is best illustrated by the astounding case of Thomas R. Faernstrom, 28, who re-enlisted at least 10 times and collected more than $30,000 in bonuses before the FBI chased him down.

The fast-talking Faernstrom would breeze into a town, set up headquarters in a hotel and offer jobs to recently discharged military men. When they came in for their job interviews, he would ask for copies of their separation papers, social security numbers and other vital documents.

Then Faernstrom would skip town and use the stolen papers to enlist under the unsuspecting veteran's name. He would collect around $2,500 in re-enlistment bonuses. Sometimes, he would also persuade the recruiters to give him advance travel expenses and pay. Then he would disappear to work the racket somewhere else.

During his travels, he used an estimated 100 names and pulled off frauds on the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. He also used the stolen identification documents to pass bad checks.

He was finally picked up by Ohio state police in a stolen car. A check with the FBI brought the end of his incredible career.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman frankly conceded that holes still exist in enlistment security. But he insisted it would be too expensive to run all fingerprints through the FBI. Other military sources say the cost would be acceptable. Meanwhile, the Pentagon is considering a delay in re-enlistment bonuses until the veterans are firmly back in the service.

WASHINGTON WHIRL — Members of Congress have their own private police force, 1,100 strong, who collect an average of $13,000 per man in salary and allowances. They are bolstered by 49 District of Columbia cops, all crack lawmen, who are assigned to Capitol Hill. Their average pay, counting allowances, is $28,000.

Just in jest

What does it cost to keep the American public informed? Would you believe that in some instances it can run as high as $2,000 a minute? Well, that's what the U.S. television networks put out in order that you might see and hear what went on during President Ford's recent trip to China. —

— I wonder, if we had known at the time that we were watching a $2,000 a minute epic, would that have made a difference? Would that have created a sense of urgency and importance which seemed sadly lacking in a trip that for many of us was just another example of modern day, ho hum political showmanship in action on an international scale?

Paul Harvey

Unwelcome visitors to U.S.

Uncle Sam is the unwilling host to a horde of unwelcome visitors. You want to know one reason our nation's improving economy is unable to soak up its unemployed? It's because there are millions of immigrants in the United States — illegally.

Illegal aliens are streaming into the United States in such numbers that immigration officials use expressions such as "flood" and "national crisis" to describe the invasion.

Los Angeles City Councilman David Cunningham says half of the residents in his district are officially "invisible" because they are illegal aliens.

According to the census there are 14,000 people in his district; actually there are 30,000.

Technically, illegal aliens are not supposed to take jobs, yet hiring them is perfectly legal. And these are no longer mostly Mexican wetbacks working in the fields of the Southwest. Now they are working in heavy industry, light industry, construction, driving taxis, working in clothing factories and restaurants.

Two Greek brothers who jumped ship in New York were found months later in a crew painting the Statue of Liberty. House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino (D.-N.J.) concedes that aliens are holding many jobs that normally would be filled by American workers but his bill to make employment of illegal immigrants illegal has repeatedly been stalled in the Senate.

Even if the Rodino bill passes, the Immigration Service can do little to enforce it without first hiring an army of enforcement officers to increase its present staff of 4,200.

At the Mexican border we've been installing electronic sensors developed for the Vietnamese war to try to catch some of the more-than-a-million who cross that border illegally each year.

And, as in Vietnam, we are winning some battles but losing the war.

In Chicago alone some 350,000 illegal Mexican aliens have settled; the city catches up with maybe 12,000 a year. Immigration officials say they are concentrating their efforts on apprehending illegal aliens holding jobs which might otherwise go to native and naturalized Americans

But this leaves other tens of thousands maintaining themselves on "welfare" with forged credentials which they can readily purchase for $25 to $100. Illegal immigrants on welfare cost California $100 million a year!

When times were good Americans were more willing to "look the other way," but the recession-bred unemployment has roused resentment. Even in Hawaii — our most hospitable and homogeneous state — where almost everybody is from elsewhere, legal Vietnam refugees are being turned away because they are an unwanted burden on the economy.

America continues to add 400,000 legal immigrants a year and illegal ones by the millions.

Eight million is the most educated guesstimate of the number of illegal aliens now in the United States — precisely the same as the number of our nation's present unemployed

Think on these things

All the things that might have been doesn't mean a thing. What can be — right now — means everything. At this point, if life can go right, it must. If there is a chance for some good thing to happen, then we have to take that chance.

Centering attention on what will work is important. And then making a decision to stay with it until it does work changes the whole plan from possible to probable. What might have been is just fiction. What can be now is concrete fact that a can reward you far more than anything you may have lost.

PET OF THE WEEK

Buddy, a six-month old male cockapoo, will be available for adoption Saturday morning at the animal shelter of the Pomona Valley Humane Society. He has had his shots, and is good with children and cats. The shelter offers many other pets just in time for Christmas.

Ann Landers

Size of family your business

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have a beautiful 5-year-old child. This is the only child we plan on having. Are we commiting a terrible crime?

I'm sick of answering questions from ignorant relatives, nosy friends, co-workers, etc., as to why we only have one child.

These ignoramuses actually make comments in front of the youngster. He is an alert and sensitive boy. Now he has started to ask why we don't give him a brother. We have tried to explain as best we can. Our answers satisfy him until some big mouth starts it all over again.

We've been very polite to these dummies but both my husband and I are losing our patience. What's the solution? - The mother Of An Only Child

Dear Mother: You don't owe ignoramuses and dummies an explanation. The size of your family is none of their business. Since you obviously want to respond, simply say, "We could never be this lucky again so we've decided to quit while we're ahead. Any more questions?"

Dear Ann Landers: What can you do when the person you work under is, quite frankly, a turkey? If I need an O.K. for a project I have to go over his head because he is unable or unwilling to make a decision.

This loser is not only indecisive but he is absent-minded, groveling, ineffective and he tends to lie when it serves his purpose.

Although I'm the one who is writing, several people in this organization share my sentiments. No one actually dislikes the jerk but he is out of his element.

Unfortunately, the executives around here are totally insensitive to this person's inadequacy. Even though they have been told everything I'm telling you, they seem unwilling to replace him. It gets worse and worse. We need your help. — Frustrated In Orange County

Dear O.C.: You don't say if the turkey happens to be the boss's son-in-law. This could make a difference. Also, the turkey might have something on a member of top management.

If neither of these two possibilities are in the picture, be patient. It's just a matter of time and he'll get the ax. Do your own jobs and work around the bird.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old college student (girl) with a serious problem. Mother.

She swears she doesn't read my mail, but I can tell when an envelope has been steamed open and resealed. Sometimes the resealing doesn't stick. Frequently my mother betrays herself by absent-mindedly mentioning things she could have learned only from reading my mail.

Last night we had a long discussion about her snooping. She wouldn't admit a thing, but insisted I was a "selfish daughter" for depriving her of the pleasure of sharing my romantic experiences.

Am I wrong about this? Please tell me if you think so and I'll shape up. — Going Bananas

Dear Nan: You are NOT wrong, it's your mother who needs to shape up. Mail is personal and private property. Your mother needs a hoby

Things made up of dozens

You can also while away some time at stop lights by counting the number of things in this world made up in units of 12. The months of the year, for instance. The signs of the zodiac. The Apostles. Jurors. And eggs. If you can't come up with another dozen, you're not trying, says our Language man.

CHURCH WEDDING

Q. "At a church wedding, who traditionally is the last one to take a seat?"

A. The mother of the bride. After she enters, the doors are supposed to be closed. Latecomers thereafter are expected to tippy-toe in and just stand there.

IT WAS COMMON KNOWLEDGE around the Chicago store that the auditors overlooked any shortage of less than 50 cents. And certainly the lady cashier, who rolled all the pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters, knew it. For 20 years, she simply left out one of same from each roll of change. She bought an apartment house with the proceeds. You and I wouldn't know about it, if they hadn't finally caught her, though.

BALLS

Q. "Quick, Louie, of the 25 different kinds of balls used in playing games, which is the most difficult to make?"

A. The golf ball.

A LARGE BOX contains four smaller boxes. In each of these smaller four, are four still smaller boxes. How many boxes are there in all? What, you say that's too simple? All right, then how do you account for the fact that fewer than half of the 93,000 people so queried were able to come up with the answer within a reasonable time? Anybody who arrives at the number 21 in a minute is said to be a better-than-average problem solver.

WHAT DO you eat for breakfast? When did you finish your Christmas shopping last year? How many unfilled dental cavities do you have? Don't answer, too personal. But these three queries are significant, according to a lady who hires the help for a big company. Her theory is people who eat good breakfasts, Christmas shop early, and get their teeth filled promptly make the most efficient workers.

More space best parakeet gift

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'd like to stuff a Christmas stocking for a parakeet friend of a friend of mine. What gifts would please such a little bird most? — D.Y.

DEAR D.Y.: The best gift, perhaps, for a pet parakeet can't be squeezed into a Christmas stocking. It's a gift of space. The average parakeet would be happier and healthier with a larger cage to provide more actual flight room. The average size cage quickly becomes cluttered with toys and gadgets, wiping out what little exercise room is available to the bird.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sport, our dear dog, rather suddenly became ill with a condition that was eventually diagnosed as a sarcoma cancer of the lymph glands. It was difficult having him put to sleep, but we thought it was all we could do. Weeks later, a friend berated us for not having treated the dog with new chemicals which, she said, can cure the cancer or at least stop it for years. We now feel terrible. Shouldn't the doctor have suggested the treatment when we gave up and put poor Sport to sleep? Was it fair to the doctor not to give us that hope? Please give us whatever information you can. — J.F.

DEAR J.F.: Unhappily, there are no truly satisfactory answers regarding the treatment of doomed cancer victims. Of course, your veterinarian wanted to save Sport if possible or at least allow him to be with you a while longer in comfort. Lymphosarcoma is an all-too-common cancer in a dog which, if untreated, will cause death, on the average, within ten weeks. While it is true that a combination of drugs can be used to treat this cancer (usually four are used simultaneously), even with this massive treatment, no cure can be anticipated, but only some remission. On the average, the dog's survival time is doubled to 20 weeks.

Probably Sport's condition was such that his veterinarian did not anticipate this average survival time even under such heavy treatment and therefore did not recommend it. To my mind, the loved pets should be happy or, at the very least, comfortable as long as they are able to stay with their owners. Drug therapy for lymphosarcoma might, under the most ideal of conditions, achieve this for a few weeks, but that is all. Your "friend's" chastisement was unwarranted and undeserved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm setting up a big new marine tank. I understand this saltwater should age before I put in the fish. —G.B.

DEAR G.B.: Among the many important factors which go into the seasoning of the saltwater aquarium, time is the most important. Marine fish, no matter how healthy initially, simply won't make it in an improperly seasoned tank. The time required depends on the size of the tank. Figure at least two weeks' waiting time for a 20-gallon tank, on up to a six weeks' wait for a 40-to 100-gallon aquarium.

Nothing too good for our pets

I never cease to be amazed at people who elevate animals to the heights of will and intellect.

You know the ones I mean . . . the owners who clothe their dogs in raincoats and boots, have their teeth capped, bed them down in a four-poster bed, send them to spas, and fight their bad breath.

The latest entry in this cult is a story out of Miami, where two poodles, Zsa Zsa and Rori, were united in holy wedlock by a notary public in Zsa Zsa's back yard. The bride's owner drew the line at planning a honeymoon, as she could not bear to be separated from the bride for any length of time. The bride had no comment.

I consider our dog a pet. Nothing more. As far as I'm concerned, I have never attributed human qualities to him. Granted he understands every word I say and sings in key with the guitar, but he's just a dog.

Oh sure, he has his own seat by the car window when we go bye-bye and we have to spell s-h-o-t-s in front of him to get him to the vet, and we don't dare turn off the Gravy Train commercials when he's watching, but he's just a domestic animal and we don't forget that.

"Can you imagine marrying Harry off?" asked my husband.

I nearly fell off the chair laughing. "That's dumb. Really dumb. I mean, I never saw a girl good enough for him."

"What about Bernice . . . that terrier in the cul-de-sac?"

"Get serious. That little tramp?"

"Or Sally, the little poodle?"

"She's too short and dumpy. That dog has just let herself go to pot."

"Come to think of it, he has been seeing a lot of Flossie."

"But who is she? I mean really? Can you believe she actually wore a flea collar to Harry's birthday party?"

"There's always that little dog he took a liking to on our vacation. What was her name? Pepper?"

"And marry out of the church! That would only be a marriage of sexual attraction."

"Lucky we're sensible people," said my husband. "And consider Harry just another D-O-G."

Med school enrollment policies

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why do medical schools hesitate to enroll students seeking admittance if they have a history of diabetes? I am so at a loss to know why.

DEAR READER — I'm not sure that I can accept your statement as a fact. Getting accepted to medical school these days is very complicated, because the number of applicants far outnumbers the places available. The reason here is obvious. The college enrollments have increased many fold over the past 20 years, and the size and capacity of medical schools have not increased anywhere nearly as much. The end result is many times the number of qualified applicants for medical school than there used to be.

It is true that a selection committee might weigh a significant health factor in terms of the advisability of using one of the spaces available for a given applicant. To illustrate the point, there would not be much wisdom in selecting an otherwise well-qualified student who has cancer with a limited opportunity to live five years.

Also the practice of medicine is very demanding, far more than most people seem to realize. The average doctor commonly puts in 60 to 80 hours a week at a minimum. The physical stamina to do this requires a reasonably good level of health. There are few, if any, other occupations or professions that require so much constant hard work as does the successful practice of medicine.

Even so, a number of people with significant, obvious medical handicaps have completed medical school successfully and been outstanding doctors. So, there is no black or white answer to your question.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In a recent column you mentioned using a product made for babies who cannot tolerate natural milk. You suggested that it could be used by anyone as a substitute for cream.

I have just looked in our store. It carries three brands of canned products supposed to be for babies and upon reading the label I find everyone of them contains some coconut oil. I did not find any sort of powder.

DEAR READER — Try another store. I do not wish to encourage the use of milk substitutes that contain lots of coconut oil. These products contain far more saturated fat than ordinary milk.

One of the brands that uses soybeans as a base is what I had in mind. ProSobee made by Mead Johnson is such a product and can be found in many stores nationwide. If your store doesn't stock such an item, it is a local problem since such items do exist. You can usually find them in the baby food section of a store. If you can't, ask your store manager to start stocking such products.

ProSobee comes in a liquid concentrate, just as canned condensed milk. It can be diluted to use as milk or used undiluted as a cream substitute.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

It was the last rubber at Castle Elsinore. Hamlet, sitting South knew he should have passed the fair Ophelia's diamond opening, but people tend to bid the last rubber.

Similarly, Ophelia didn't have to jump all the way to three notrump, but she had great faith in Hamlet.

West opened the king of spades. Hamlet ducked, but had to win the spade continuation. Then he soliloquized, "To gamble, or not to gamble. Ah, there's the rub. For whether 'tis better to suffer a small penalty or to test the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune and risk a seven trick set. I'll try the latter."

Then he led dummy's king of hearts, overtook with his ace and led his 10 of diamonds. The finesse worked and all was well at Castle Elsinore.

The finesse was not as much of a gamble as it might have been. West's bid had marked him with a lot of high cards and he was more likely than not to hold the king of diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know if his opening bid of four hearts holding:

♠ A ♥ A K Q J 9 4 2 ♦ A Q J ♣ 8 5

was correct. His partner had passed.

Our answer is that it was sound. He had 10 tricks all his own, but a forcing two-bid opening would have been far better. In spite of his partner's pass there might well be a slam.

REUNION — Mrs. Janet Bogdal and her son, Rick Squires, embrace after 21-year separation. This will be her happiest Christmas ever, said Mrs. Bogdal, who gave up her son for adoption in 1954.

Mother gave up son after birth

Find each other after 21 years

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "I always prayed he'd come back to me so I could explain," Janet Bogdal said Wednesday after a tearful reunion with a son she last saw as an infant 20 years ago.

"I'm the happiest woman in the world," she said. "This is going to be a happy Christmas, I have all my pieces again."

Rick Squires, 21, of Auburn, N.Y., met his mother at the Fort Lauderdale airport for the first time since he was given up for adoption. They hugged and held hands.

"I love you," said Squires, who had searched more than three years for his mother.

Mrs. Bogdal, now 40, said she was left penniless in 1954 when her husband walked out. She had two sons, 1-year-old Alfred and newborn Rick.

"At the time, it seemed in the best interests of the child to give him away to a family I thought would care for him right," she said. "I couldn't give up Alfred but I couldn't drag Rick through the kind of life I had to offer. We were very poor."

After arranging for Rick's adoption by friends of her parents, Mrs. Bogdal saw him only once, when he was a year old, before the family moved and she lost contact. Rick later lived in several foster homes after the adoptive parents split up about 12 years ago.

Rick, an insurance salesman, reached his mother by phone last month. "Mom, this is Ricky Lynn. I've looked for you everywhere. I love you and that's enough."

"We've been talking our fool heads off since he arrived," said Mrs. Bogdal. "Alfred lives nearby. He had tried to locate Ricky once but couldn't. Now, the two brothers can't stop hugging each other. It's great."

"He is my Christmas and Christmas gift all rolled into one handsome boy," she said.

Cite fears Egypt's mummies will burn or 'shake to death'

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An Egyptologist and a physicist say famed mummies and ancient treasures in the Egyptian Museum here are not protected by an effective fire control system and will become vulnerable to vibrations and pollution after the construction of a new automobile bridge over the Nile River.

Cairo's governor says that he doubts the new bridge will bring harm to the treasures.

The museum, near Cairo's Liberation Square, has 100 rooms that are a potential tinderbox, the two experts contend.

Museum authorities say they are considering installing a new fire control system with sprinklers.

"The lack of foreign currency and the outbreak of the October 1973 war prevented us from taking a decision on that earlier," says Museum director Abdel Kader Salim, the Egyptologist.

In addition to wooden panels, carvings and other artifacts going back to 5000 B.C., the museum has one room with scores of dried out royal mummies displayed in glass cases, including that of Ramsis II who ruled Egypt for 67 years (1298-1232 B.C.) and built the famed Abu Simbel Temples.

It also contains the gold-plated wooden chariot of the boy King Tut Ankhamon as well as other discoveries from his tomb, some of which are scheduled to tour the United States starting late next year.

An elaborate multi-use firecontrol system could cost up to $200,000, the director said.

"The existing 20-year-old system is so ineffective that you would need to put a flame right beneath the detector — placed high up on the wall — to set off the alarm," Selim says.

He adds that installing a new network "occurred to us after the numerous fires that have swept the country over the past years."

In 1971 fire destroyed Cairo's historic Opera House, where Verdi's Aida was first performed over a century ago. The Gawhara Palace, ornate residence of Egypt's 19th century rulers and later a museum, was damaged by fire a year later. Both were near firehouses.

A theater, a circus, a blanket factory and a huge paper depot all went up in flames earlier this year.

"We cannot rule out sabotage," says Selim "nor can we rule out short-circuits that can happen in old buildings."

The Egyptian Museum was built in 1900. Its electric circuitry is being changed for the first time this year.

"But installing a fire control system is not the end of our worries," says Saleh A. Saleh, an expert in x-ray physics and head of the research and conservation Institute of Antiquities.

"The new bridge will hem in the museum from the north, east and west. It is dangerously close to the building.

"The vibrations caused by the heavy traffic will affect the walls and foundations of the museum and in turn the glass showcases and their historic contents will quiver.

"Thus all gilded objects, like King Tut's famous mask, will with time gradually get detached from the main body and eventually crack and crumble.

Herd of musk oxen given big welcome

UNALAKLEET, Alaska (AP) — A herd of 49 musk oxen, 47 of them pregnant, got a big welcome when they were air-lifted into this frozen fishing village on the Bering Sea.

The herd means 30 new jobs in the poverty stricken Eskimo village of 580 residents, almost all of whom turned out at the village's tiny airstrip last week.

"They had waited a full day in a blizzard," said Dr. John J. Teal, director of the University of Alaska's musk-ox domestication program.

"The temperature was 38 below and the wind was gusting to 45 knots. The operation lasted from midnight to 3 a.m. The crates with oxen were lugged off the planes by an army of children."

Unalakleet's only other sources of employment are a few government jobs and a six-week fishing season in the summer.

A half-dozen men will be put to work as herdsmen and two dozen women will have jobs knitting, making scarves, caps and other clothing from quivet, the animal's silky underwool.

Teal says quivet is finer in texture than any other substance known in nature.

"Demand for clothing made of quivet is so high that we can't meet it now," he said. Shearing is done simply by lifting the wool off the animal.

The mask ox are friendly, bright and affectionate creatures.

"They are also kindly disposed to two-legged creatures," he said. "The Eskimos of Etah say that man descended from the musk ox. They don't say 'ascended.'"

The project is cosponsored by the university and the Institute for Northern Agricultural Research, headed by Teal. It is financed in part by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, a Vermont-based institute which has established musk-ox breeding stations in Norway and Canada.

Soviets arrest man who spied for them

NEMURO, Japan (AP) — A Japanese fisherman who admitted supplying the Soviet Union with Japanese defense data in return for fishing privileges in Soviet-held waters has been reported arrested by the Russians, police said today.

A police spokesman on Hokkaido, Japan's large northernmost island, said Masanori Sawada, 40, had allegedly supplied the Soviets with road maps and reports on Japan self-defense force deployments in return for permission to fish around islands seized by the Soviet Union in the final days of World War II. Japan has demanded the islands back.

Sawada was arrested by the Japanese in December 1974 and last May he was fined $166 on charges of violating Japan's quarantine law. Police said these were the only grounds on which he could be prosecuted because Japan has no antiespionage laws.

After paying his fine, Sawada continued to operate his 13-ton fishing boat until last month, when he was reportedly arrested by the Soviets, police said. He has not been heard from since.

Fontana man gets 20 years

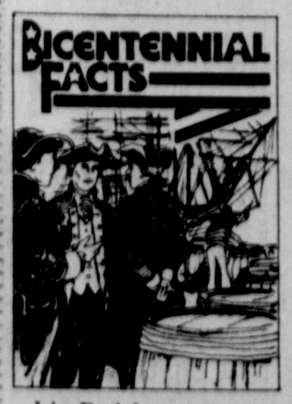
LAS VEGAS (AP) — A California man was sentenced Monday to 20 years in prison on convictions of burglary, battery, and kidnaping.

Eli Van Fedder, 24, of Fontana, was convicted on all three counts in District Court here last April, but was released on bail pending his scheduled sentencing in mid-May.

Court officials said he jumped bail, but subsequently was apprehended in Pennsylvania in September, returned to Las Vegas, and held in county jail pending being sentenced Monday by District Court Judge J. Charles Thompson.

At his trail, the prosecution alleged that Fedder broke into the home of a Las Vegas woman in 1974, and was burglarizing the house when the woman returned home. When she tried to call police, Fedder allegedly struck her, then dragged her out of the home into a surrounding desert area.

Judge Thompson sentenced Fedder to five years for burglary, five for battery, and ten for kidnaping, the sentences to run consecutively.



John Paul Jones was an unemployed naval officer in America when the Revolutionary War broke out. Fitting out the ship Alfred (the first ship purchased by Congress), Jones became friends with two important delegates who were prominent in organizing the Continental navy. He obtained a commission in December, 1775, through their efforts, as that ship's senior first lieutenant. But it was not until Jones was given command of the ship Providence later in 1776 that he started earning a reputation for success that was to have no equal in the Continental navy, The World Almanac recalls.

Mediators summon union, UAL back for new huddle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators have called United Airlines and its striking machinists union back to the bargaining table Friday in a new effort to end the nearly two-week dispute that has severely hampered holiday air traffic.

The talks will be the first since last Wednesday, when negotiations were broken off to give both sides time to reconsider their positions. The United strike and a walkout by flight attendents that has grounded National Airlines since Labor Day forced millions of holiday travelers to find alternate means of transportation.

The two airlines together handle 23 per cent of the nation's domestic air service.

Meanwhile, United has canceled 11 flights through Jan. 5. Earlier, United had announced that it was cancelling regularly scheduled flights through Christmas Eve and chartered flights through Jan. 1.

In a move to ease some of the crush the Civil Aeronautics Board is allowing Pan American Airlines to carry domestic passengers between New York and San Francisco from Thursday until Dec. 23.

The strikes at United and National airlines, meanwhile, were reportedly causing delays of everything from flowers to medical supplies.

Hawaii was reportedly severely affected where the loss of the many Uited flights hampered the tourist business and also hurt shippers of flowers and fruit.

Actress' estate sued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The estate of the late actress Marilyn Monroe owes more than $90,000 in back taxes and interest, the state Franchise Tax Board contends.

The suit was filed in Superior Court Tuesday and seeks $51,243 in taxes from 1963 through 1970, as well as $12,080 in penalties and $27,604 interest from the executor of the estate, Aaron Frosch.

Miss Monroe died from an overdose of sleeping pills in 1962. She was 36.

Recording lulls tots to sleep

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Newborn babies at St. Luke's Hospital sleep to a strange lullaby that seems to please them but rattles the nerves of their nurses.

The nightly tune is a soft, whooshing sound, a recording of a pulse similar to one the babies heard in the womb before birth.

"I guess you could say it's like putting a clock next to a puppy," said Julia Durand, head nurse for the delivery room. By calming the infants, the system helps them gain weight faster because they don't use up calories crying, she said.

The record player in the nursery has proved especially effective in calming premature babies, Mrs. Durand said.

"We had one 'preemie' that I know was very impressed with the record," she said. "She fussed until we wheeled her alongside of it."

Some hospitals began playing records or tapes of adult heartbeat to lull infants after Dr. Lee Salk, director of pediatric psychiatry at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, published research on the subject.

Salk's idea was that the sound of blood rushing through the uterus is a familiar one for infants because of the nine months they spend listening to it.

The lullabies seem to work until a baby is about three months old. By then, the infant has become more familiar with other sounds in its environment and "tends to forget the beat," Mrs. Durand said.

The nurses aren't as enthusiastic about the recordings as the babies.

"But even if they (the nurses) don't care for it, I guess screaming babies would be worse," Mrs. Durand said.

Honor attendant was Miss Jean Hite of Ontario.

Usher was Karl Kalbaugh of Denison, Iowa.

Waxing

No need to let the threat of stains on wooden furniture cloud your holiday plans, says Leslie Wood, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax. Well-waxed furniture will stand up better than unwaxed pieces. If you do get a spot on a wax-protected surface, she suggests applying Johnson Paste Wax with the tip of your finger to rub it out. Moistened cigar ash may also do the trick. But in either case, re-wax the entire surface.

Sigma Phi Delta sets reunion

Sigma Phi Delta sorority from Cal Poly Pomona will hold a 10-year reunion at Feb. 28 at the Lobster House in Redondo Beach at 2 p.m.

The committee is attempting to contact any former members residing in the area to extend an invitation to the event.

Interested women may contact Joyce Crabtree, 213-338-6317 or 213-337-3164.

Holiday fare

For an easy yet elegant holiday dessert whip some cream and sweeten lightly with powdered sugar. Fold in 2 tablespoons green creme de menthe and chill. Fold in well drained canned cling peach slices. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Joyce Brothers

Daughter on bottle

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Over the past few months, I've been trying to live with the knowledge that my 17-year-old daughter is a drunk. At first, I thought she just had some kind of allergic reaction to a particular drink because she would go violently ill, start to pass out, and then simply be too ill to make it to the bathroom. I used to clean up after her; now I don't even bother. She has been in four accidents but fortunately none has injured anyone else.

Last week, I had a long talk with her and she admitted that she can't control her drinking. She says she wants to stop because she sees that it's ruining her life and she seems to know she's in danger when she drinks, but the moment she has the opportunity, she begins again, forgetting all her good resolutions. I look back over the way I've raised her and I can't understand what caused this problem. Her father and I have tried to do right by her but I'm afraid we've failed. This is hard to live with. — G.W.

Dear G.W.: Don't waste time on placing blame. Your daughter is an alcoholic and no one knows exactly what causes this. What is known is that alcoholism can be arrested and there is no reason why your daughter can't be helped immediately.

Your saying that you thought your daughter had "some kind of allergic reaction" is interesting because alcoholism is, in many ways, similar to an allergy. The only thing is that it doesn't make any difference what the drink is — as long as it contains alcohol, it is a kind of poison for an alcoholic.

A recent government report described an alarming rate of alcoholism among young people. A survey of 10,000 students indicated that nearly one out of every seven male high school seniors reports getting drunk at least once a week. Youngsters don't understand that alcohol can be just as deadly as the hard drugs. It used to be thought it took years for alcoholism to develop, but it is becoming a disease of the young, rather than the middle-aged. Because alcohol is socially acceptable, it makes the battle very difficult. However, it is possible to fight and win.

There are special groups of Alcoholics Anonymous geared to the problems of adolescents. Whether or not there is such a group in your area, any A.A. program will provide the necessary tools to help your daughter recover. Through this organization she will learn how to cope with stress without alcohol and she will eventually discover that the natural high is far superior to any state induced by drugs.

You can learn how to help by attending meetings of Al-Anon, an organization designed to help people whose loved ones are alcoholic.

If your daughter can recognize and admit that she has a problem and that her life has become unmanageable, she has taken a major step in overcoming her difficulty. Most alcoholics are defensive about their drinking and insist for years that they can control it even though there is ample evidence to show this is not so. Your daughter is fortunate in being able to realize, before it has taken more of a toll on her life, that she can't handle alcohol. Many alcoholics don't come to this realization until they are in their middle years. By arresting it early she will find that she has a head start on a way of living that leads to increased fulfillment and maturity.

When the Hayeses were married they honeymooned aboard the SS. Harvard, which at that time made regular trips between San Diego and San Francisco.

Kitchen care

The floor around doorways and the sink are two areas of your kitchen that generally need special care before, during and after holidays, says Leslie Wood, consumer informmation specialist for Johnson wax. She suggests using a self-polishing product such as Glo-Coat that shields against black heel marks and can be used to touch up problem areas.

permanent dump for nuclear waste

NGEN, West (AP) — in Lower Sax- German scien- eparing to con- round rock salt into a perma- p for highly nuclear waste. ent experts say ve the facility n international safe disposal of bage, one of the technical the atom age. proposed sites uclear waste have been kept fear of trigger- rotests. say final site ill be made soon ced next year — k of adding a inflammatory sue to politick- 6 elections.

West Germany has pioneering experience in safe nuclear waste disposal, government spokesmen say.

Since 1967, low-and medium-level radioactive waste has been deposited nearly half a mile underground in an unused salt mine about a mile north of the Lower Saxony town of Remlingen.

There have been no accidents, say officials, explaining that the water-tight rock salt formations are nearly fool proof against the only real human threat posed by underground waste disposal — radioactive contamination of natural water reserves.

"It's the safest system in the world today," said a Research Ministry spokesman.

He said "no final repository system has yet been chosen in the United States. Only very low-activity waste is buried in shallow trenches and covered with earth."

Other countries with waste problems have suggested that West Germany's underground salt caverns make it an obvious choice as a sort of international garbage dump for radioactive waste, he said.

"God forbid," he commented, adding that the Bonn government has pointed out that these countries also have geological structures offering suitable underground storage possibilities — such as salt mines in the United States and granite formations in France.

Reporters inspecting the mine here were shown how low-level waste is stored in casks, which are rolled into vast salt caverns 2,500 feet underground and covered with salt. When full, the caverns are sealed.

Medium-level fluid or slime waste is mixed with cement or bitumen, poured into casks and transported in shielded 9.2-ton containers to a section of the mine where they are lowered down a shielded shaft to a cavern 1,670 feet below the surface.

There is no human access to this cavern, which is monitored by closed-circuit TV.

Even greater precautions will have to be taken at the proposed final depository for the high-level waste output of the fuel recycling plant.

Present plans foresee mixing the "hot" waste with molten glass and allowing it to harden in blocks.

The waste is so radioactive that three years after sealing, the temperature of the glass blocks would still measure roughly 572 degrees at their surface and double that at their core.

Low-and medium-level waste would be lowered from the surface plant directly down a 2,500-foot deep shaft to a cavern.

To cope with the highly radioactive glass blocks, scientists are now experimenting with shafts drilled even deeper.

Because future waste disposal needs are expected to present an ever-growing financial problem, the government plans to make the new facility self-supporting.

Nuclear power stations and other clients will be charged the equivalent in marks of $70 to $870 for each 50-gallon cask of waste, depending on the radioactivity level.

Inventive founders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two inventors whose births are honored in January are much better remembered for their roles on the stage of American history.

Thomas Paine, the fiery Revolutionary pamphleteer who was born on Jan. 29, 1737, also had an excellent mechanical mind which produced numerous patents, according to Intellectual Property Owners Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to strengthening our patent system. Among his inventions was the first iron bridge, successfully built in England, a machine for planing boards, a crane and an improved carriage wheel.

Benjamin Franklin was a great statesman and more of a scientist than an inventor, but our first "Universal Man" did invent bifocal eyeglasses, the lightning rod and what came to be known as the "Franklin stove." Born Jan. 17, 1706, Franklin won international attention with his experiments with electricity and the lightning rod was a mere by-product.

Western world predictions

Economic growth, inflation ahead

PARIS (AP) — The economies of the Western world should continue moderate growth in 1976, but inflation is likely to remain high and unemployment increase everywhere except in the United States.

That is the prediction of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a 24-nation group of Western industrialized nations.

In the United States, the current upturn is "likely to slow down in the course of 1976 ... and the fall in unemployment will probably be slow," according to the report released early Thursday in Europe.

Inflation in the United States, currently about 7.6 per cent, "is not forecast to decline substantially" next year, it said. The one positive indication was belief that there would be a "substantial" U.S. balance of payments surplus during the year.

OECD suggested there will be an over-all inflation rate of 8½ per cent for all member nations between the second halves of 1975 and 1976, on a growth rate of 4 per cent. For the United States, it foresaw inflation of 7 per cent on growth of 4¾ per cent.

Such moderate growth "might not be an unwelcome prospect to the countries concerned," it said, adding that while all the governments want continued recovery "they cannot ignore the continuing high rate of inflation and the risks of giving it a new boost."

If its predictions work out, the OECD foresees unemployment for the 24 nations together as "a little higher" at the end of 1976 than the current 15 million — 5½ per cent of the work force. At the same time, inflation will be high, in double figures for many countries, with "perhaps a tendency to reaccelerate in some cases," it said.

The OECD recommended the United States, Japan and West Germany, with comparatively favorable positions, lead the expansion with harder-hit nations such as Britain and Italy "concentrating primarily on reducing their inflation and relying on export-led growth."

The report said that since the present slow recovery may prove to be self-sustaining, the time might be ripe to study ways of avoiding a downturn after the next boom.

Problems in achieving such a result, however, arise because business cycles in the OECD countries do not follow the same rhythm. The report said that upswings in the United States and Japan may be leading those of the most strongly placed European countries by six months, and those of the weaker countries by 12 to 18 months.

The best way of arriving at some leveling out may be in avoiding excessive monetary expansion and in controlling budget deficits, the report said. However, it admitted that the timing of monetary controls is difficult, and management of budget deficits sometimes impossible because of governmental and parliamentary constraints.

Texas prison system a good model

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fifth of a series of articles on the California prison and parole systems and how it came to pass that the prison population is being reduced by nearly 1,000 hardened criminals a month under a policy instituted this year by state parole and prison officials.)

By STATE SEN. H. L. (BILL) RICHARDSON
TONY CIMARUSTI

With the rampant crime rate and permissive prison and parole policies being carried out, the time is ripe for a proper reform of these functions by state government.

Some of us have been accused of wanting to just lock up the criminals and throw away the key. While there are some who deserve that kind of treatment, for the best interests of society, still that's not the only alternative open to us as a civilized society.

Interestingly, the permissive penology has never found out how to make rehabilitation work. So, instead of trying something in the other direction, the liberal prison managers keep getting more permissive and have abandoned any hope of effective rehabilitation.

There is one thing which needs to be stressed about the permissive penology, and it can't be stressed too much — THERE HAS NEVER BEEN ANYTHING BUT NEGATIVE RESULTS FROM SO-CALLED PROGRESSIVE PRISON AND PAROLE PROGRAMS.

The purveyors of these programs can't be daunted by failure, however, so they ignore it and just go on to further actions designed to empty the prisons.

Now, there is reason to believe that California needs to rid itself of the indeterminate sentence. That's where a judge sends a man or woman to prison, but the term has very wide parameters, such as five years to life.

But the judge makes no sentence without a probation report on the individual to be sentenced. And it is not uncommon for a different judge to do the sentencing than who presided at the court trial.

It should be understood, too, that the sentence given by the judge is only a recommendation, really, to the Adult Authority.

Within that minimum and maximum structure, the Adult Authority then sets the actual term. Current policy is such that more than 90 per cent of the inmates have been given parole dates, including Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assasin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

What does a sentence of five years to life really mean? Does it really mean five years? No. Present law states a prisoner is eligible for parole after serving one third of his minimum sentence. So, if he behaves, a man sentenced to a minimum of five years (60 months) will be eligible to walk out on parole after 20 months, or less than two years.

Using a state Supreme Court decision (in re Rodriguez) as an excuse, the Adult authority has subverted the indeterminate sentencing law by, in effect, giving everybody a fixed term, within certain time brackets.

In the Rodriguez decision, the court held that the Adult Authority could consider only the offense for which a person was convicted in determining the sentence. If the convict caused serious problems inside the prison, or appeared to be seriously mentally disordered, the person's term could be adjusted accordingly to keep him or her locked up longer, in order to protect society.

But the Rodriguez decision only applied to that particular case, and even so, top legal minds believe the court went too far and did some legislating in making the ruling. (As we all know, that wouldn't be the first time a judicial body delved into the legislative arena.)

The court held, however, that the indeterminate sentencing law is constitutional. A person sentenced to a term in which the maximum was life could, indeed, be held for life, if that were the normal sentencing practice.

As we know, however, that is not the normal sentencing practice in California. Here, if the criminal isn't given a lenient probation recommendation or other easy treatment by the court, he gets practically red-carpet treatment by the Adult Authority.

It's for that reason that some of us in state government believe we must go to mandatory, pre-determined sentencing in California, so that a judge actually will fix the sentence of a criminal before that person leaves the courtroom, and no parole board of other bureaucratic or political entity can usurp that authority.

That's the only way Californians are going to be able to hold anyone accountable in the criminal justice system. Right now, it's a case of each group pointing the finger at the other jurisdiction and laying the blame there.

Whether or not we adopt a new determinate sentencing law in California, we need prison reform so that a convict can be turned out with a new outlook on life.

No doubt, most so-called liberals don't expect that kind of proposal from someone of our political philosophy.

But we sincerely believe in an individual being responsible for his or her own actions, and we, as a society, are missing a great chance to help some of the misfits to become responsible citizens.

We know the California prison system can be operated more successfully and at less cost to the taxpayer than is the case today and rehabilitate at the same time. Believe it or not, there's a model system from which to work.

There are a lot of jokes about Texas, but that state's Department of Corrections is certainly no joke. Texas prisons are not funny farms, nor are they havens for brutal, red-necked prison guards. Instead, Texas has a model prison system that is effective at rehabilitation.

All inmates work at some assigned task, whether it is growing their own food, making cloth from their own cotton, making their own clothes, working with leather, manufacturing all of their own shoes and footwear for the state's hospital and other personnel, working on construction, becoming a dental lab technician, repairing television sets and refrigeration units, refinishing furniture, and a variety of other self-supporting tasks.

There is a tire recapping manufacturing facility, which was equipped by a private manufacturer who helps provide the instructors. He gets first call on a properly trained inmate when the man is ready for parole, and the convict leaves prison certificated by the state as a properly trained and qualified person in that industry.

The state provides such certification for every prisoner who has earned one when he is paroled, and private employers recognize that these men are ready to work and have a usable skill.

Unlike California prisons, where inmates loll about thinking and talking of ways to ease the boredom — and sometimes violently acting — Texas convicts have no such wasted leisure time.

Each persons works and may receive an education as well. A young convict, especially a first termer, who has failed to have completed a certain education level must do so while he's incarcerated, but he works at a trade, too.

The state doesn't provide electronics pacifiers, in the way of television sets, as substitutes for sound rehabilitative programs. Inmates refurbish, tune-up and maintain all the school buses in Texas, obviously a large savings to the taxpayers.

A Texas inmate learns sound health habits. He must keep his cell neat.

Each inmate is given a written set of rules. He knows what the disciplinary measures are and that they will be applied if he breaks the rules.

First offenders are not put in with old timers. Instead, they go to a facility in which work, education, vocational training and counseling are stressed.

We could go on an on, but the point is, the Texas system works, and it is about 75 per cent self-supporting, because inmates provide so much for themselves.

The men are busy working and learning. A man's mind and body are tired at the end of a day, so he is anxious to get proper rest.

Instead that kind of situation in California prisons, the inmates here loiter in groups, or watch the electronic pacifiers, or make knives or other weapons (including guns).

The atmosphere in a California prison is one of extreme tension, frustration and seething antagonism aimed at a system which is doing almost literally nothing to improve the prospects for the inmates when they get out, and failing to protect society as well.

This is the result of years and years of the permissive penology. Now, the thrust is to empty the prisons, because the so-called progressives say rehabilitation doesn't work.

They tell us the solution, therefore, is to close all prisons and put the criminals into community-based programs.

It's happening right now. The Department of Corrections will have released 10,800 felons by the end of this year, more than double the 5,000 of 1974.

Again, there is absolutely no proof that community counseling and other services work to turn a criminal mind into something else, but that doesn't deter the permissives.

In fact, the FBI report of "Crime in the United States, 1974" revealed that 65 per cent of the persons arrested during 1970-74 were repeaters.

Rehabilitation, as practiced in Texas, leads to a recidivist (repeat offenders) rate of 30 to 33 per cent. In Texas, they count a repeater as anyone who has ever been paroled or discharged and who is sent back to state prison in his lifetime.

In California, laughingly, the recidivist rate is announced at about 26 per cent, but they count a repeater as a criminal who returns to a state prison within one year of his release. (In other words, the statistics are shaped to indicate success instead of the reality of failure.)

Truthfully, the recidivist rate in California is at least 75 per cent. Yet we continue to empty the prisons, even in the face of the tremendous increase in crime. By contrast, the Texas prison population increased about 12 per cent this year and has gone up 45 per cent since 1970.

We can change things in California, but we can't continue emptying the prisons of hardened criminals so they can prey on the citizens of California while we go about it.

Our office has had legislation prepared to make what we consider necessary changes in the prison and parole systems in our state, but all of us in this battle need the support of the citizenry if we are to have any chance at all of having such changes approved by a very liberal legislature.

We urge each of you to support the kind of prison reform we've outlined. We strongly suggest that each of you write to your Assemblyman and State Senator, and other elected officials, such as Governor Brown, to have the current permissive parole policy reversed.

Only by getting active and letting your feelings be known will we have a chance to turn things around in California.

Believe it, the life you save may be your own.

GREAT WITH GREETING CARDS — Frieda Herrmann, 55-year-old organist currently unemployed, sends around 2,500 greeting cards every year, mostly to people she never met. The cards here are attached to chicken wire on wall in shape of a Christmas tree in Philadelphia home.

Champion card sender frets over hike in postage rates

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frieda Herrmann sends around 2,500 greeting cards every year, mostly to people she never met.

But the 55-year-old restaurant organist (currently unemployed) is worried that inflation in the form of higher postage will force her to trim the mailings which now average seven cards daily. She's asked President Ford to do what he can "to keep the price of stamps reasonable."

"I'm sure you will do the right thing," she wrote the White House in a letter that hasn't yet been answered.

First class postage is scheduled to jump from its present dime to 13 cents after Christmas, and Miss Herrmann insists "it will be a hardship.

"Unemployment doesn't pay me enough," she says. "When the price goes up I'll have to cut my mailing list, which means some shut-ins won't be receiving a note every week and to some it's the only mail they receive."

Miss Herrmann, born in Trenton, N.J., is an only child who says the only known relative she has is a second cousin "somewhere in California."

Her family is the folks she sends cards to, all over the world.

"I have a lot of friends, and that is more important than family," she says. "You are stuck with your relatives, but friends you can pick."

"I love people, and I like to make them happy," she says.

Most of the names on Miss Herrmann's list she obtained when she worked during the past three decades as an organist in various clubs and restaurants, pounding out organ music during and after dinner. She's handed out cards to the patrons, asking for names, addresses, birth and wedding dates.

"If anyone mentions an ill relative I get the name and send a card," she says. "You never realize how much it means to receive cards when you are sick at home or in a hospital. It brings a little bit of joy into people's lives."

And strangers, or not, they love to be remembered.

"I received a letter recently from a woman in South Carolina about cards I had sent to her mother over the years," Miss Herrmann says. "She said her mother keeps all the cards in a box."

Sometimes, of course, there's sadness, like the letter from Wilmington, Del., expressing thanks for a card for a 41st anniversary.

"The woman wrote that her husband had died a month before the anniversary," Miss Herrmann says.

The planet closest to the Earth is Venus.

Smith boats to be sold for debts

The U.S. District Court in San Diego has authorized sale of the vessels to pay off debts incurred by Smith. A similar auction last Thanksgiving sold seven boats.

Smith, former bank executive and head of a billion-dollar corporate empire, has been indicted by the San Diego County grand jury on a number of charges including misapplication of bank funds and state income tax evasion. He pleaded no contest to similar federal charges last summer.

Death penalty to be sought

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The district attorney's office says it will seek the death penalty for a man charged with four murders, including the alleged contract killing of roller derby skater Carole Phillips.

Robert Leroy Biehler, 41, of Pico Rivera, was ordered held without bail Tuesday after a hearing before Van Nuys Municipal Court Judge Richard Amerian.

The judge set Dec. 31 for Biehler's arraignment on four counts of murder and one count of attempted murder.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Gerald Cohen said the state would seek the death penalty against Biehler because of the number of killings and the alleged murder-for-hire, which are grounds for the death penalty under a new California law.

Biehler is charged with the Christmas Eve 1974 murder of Miss Phillips, and of attempting to kill her in two months previously. She had recovered from gunshot wounds suffered in October when she was kidnaped in North Hollywood and taken to Sun Valley where she was shot in the head.

Maida Sue Ellington, 34, who had lived with Miss Phillips, had been convicted of murder in her death. She had carried a $72,000 life insurance policy on Miss Phillips.

Biehler was arrested last Friday while visiting Miss Ellington at the California Institution for Women at Frontere. Authorities said only that a year-long investigation led to his arrest.

He also is charged with the October 1973 murder of Michael Rodney Coveny of Sunland, and with the December 1966 killings of Julia Cook, 41, and her son, Kenneth, 15. They were shot to death in their North Hollywood apartment.

Yule themes rule at St. Madeleine

First graders presented a play for their fellow students and parents Wednesday under the supervision of Miss Joanne Iavello.

Sixth graders, under the direction of Mrs. Lynda Kunce, left today by bus for the Pala Indian Mission near Temecula. The student will present gifts and cards to the mission children and attend a Christmas party with them.

The sixth graders will present a play, titled "A Christmas Carol," at St. Madeleine Friday.

The Student Council, under the guidance of Mrs. Marcia Levingston, vice principal, will lead the student body in the Liturgy of the Mass Friday. They will also present a movie to the school as a gift.

Miss Christelle Estrada, religion coordinator, has organized classes for Advent preparation for the time before Christmas. Daily Mass and weekly Penance services, prepared in large part by the students, increased students' awareness of the importance of Christmas, according to Principal Brian Bennett.

Mrs. Donna Phipps coordinated Parent-Teacher Guild Christmas activity for the school. Trees and a Nativity Scene were donated by Mrs. Mary Olin. Christmas refreshments were served by Mrs. Phipps and her volunteer staff.

The faculty and staff at St. Madeleine School will dismiss students Friday at 12:30 p.m. for the holiday recess. Classes will resume Monday, Jan. 5, at 8:40 a.m.

For the very first time, United Airlines won't be able to take you home for the holidays.

We can't do that this Holiday Season because of a strike by one of our unions.

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents United employees who service our aircraft, operate our kitchens, and perform many vital maintenance and airport ramp functions, stopped work December 5 after three months of negotiations failed to produce a contract settlement.

This is the first time in almost a decade, and only the third time in nearly 50 years of service, that United Airlines has ceased operation due to a strike.

We know the inconvenience which this causes to thousands of people. We're sincerely sorry!

All of you who have been our good customers over the years, and those who may have been looking forward to their first air trip this Holiday Season, deserve an explanation.

1. We don't think anyone benefits from a strike—customer, employee or stockholder. United's long record of good labor relations proves our constant commitment to bargain in good faith. Bluntly stated, everyone loses from a strike.

2. The airline industry has the highest average pay in the United States, and United is a leader among the airlines when it comes to wages and benefits. We're proud of our good pay and working conditions because they have helped us attract the best team of employees in the business.

3. Weak management is bad for a company. An agreement could be reached by accepting terms that would cause severe financial damage to United Airlines in the long run. To accept the IAM's proposals would be to abdicate our responsibility to our customers, to our stockholders and to our own employees, including those 17,000 who are involved in this work stoppage.

4. This country depends on a strong national air transportation system. United is the nation's largest carrier, with 1400 flights a day to 113 cities. United and the other trunk carriers operate this essential transportation system without subsidy. If we are to maintain the system under private ownership, we must have financially strong carriers—able to pay their bills and generate the funds needed to maintain and replace safe and modern jet aircraft fleets as well as to pay competitive wages. This means that the carriers must make reasonable profits on a continuing basis.

In 1975 the scheduled airlines absorbed sharp increases in fuel costs, wages, benefits and other costs without a fare increase until November 15, when a 3 percent increase was approved. Earnings in the airline industry in 1975 are badly depressed.

We believe that management has a responsibility to stand firm for a settlement that will give our IAM employees the wage adjustments they need to cope with inflation but at the same time keep the company financially strong.

Agreeing to a contract substantially beyond the company's ability to pay would not fulfill our fiscal responsibility.

No company, large or small, no government agency, no family can continue to spend more than it earns. Insofar as United Airlines is concerned, it would eventually lead to a permanent reduction in service to the public, loss of jobs for our employees and injury to the investments of our stockholders.

We hope you will understand our position. When we get back to work—soon, we hope—all our good people will be ready to serve you in the friendly skies.

Meanwhile, many of our employees are working in other airline offices over the holidays to help our customers find alternate transportation.

The Move To Impeach Santa

Chapter Nine
By Robert J. Boyle

"I want all of you here in the UN Assembly room promptly at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning," he said.

As Jinkersnipes and Juniperperper walked out, U.B. Fruitful and D. Lightful Wynter came up to them and said, "You did fine today. I believe Santa will win without any trouble."

"Trouble," Juniperperper said. "This already is trouble. We should be at the North Pole getting ready for Christmas and instead we are here. I hope Santa can get along without us."

"I'm sure he misses you two," D. Lightful Wynter said. "But I'm also sure the other elves will pitch in."

"I know they will," Jinkersnipes said.

"Now, how about tonight," U.B. Fruitful said. "Would you two honor us by having dinner with us at the Rocky Fellow Plaza?"

"I'm sorry," Juniperperper said. "But I have a prior arrangement. I'm having dinner with Julia June, a stewardess on North Pole One."

"How about you, Jinkersnipes?" asked U.B. Fruitful. "Can you join us."

"I'd like that," the elf replied. "After being on the stand today I could use a night out."

"We'll pick you up at your hotel at 8 o'clock," D. Lightful Wynter said. "I'm sure we'll have a delightful time."

When Juniperperper and Jinkersnipes returned to their hotel, they showered and prepared for a night on the town.

"Do you think it is right that we should be having fun when Santa is in so much trouble?" Juniperperper wondered.

"Gee I don't know," Jinkersnipes replied.

"I'll tell you what we will do, we'll call Santa," Juniperperper said. "It'll be great hearing his voice and I'll ask him if he would mind if we went out."

They had the hotel operator put in the call and within minutes June Jawing, the North Pole operator was on the line.

"Hi, there, June," Juniperperper said. "How are things at the North Pole?"

"Fine, Juniperperper," June Jawing replied. "We all saw you on television today and thought you did wonderful."

"Thank you," Juniperperper said. "Is Santa there. May I talk to him?"

"Hello, Santa here," a deep but friendly voice said.

"Hi, Santa," Juniperperper said. "How are you?"

"My, my and my, Juniperperper," Santa said. "I was hoping you would call. We watched you on TV today and all are proud of you and Jinkersnipes."

"Honest, Santa?" Juniperperper asked.

"Honest," Santa said. "We'll be watching tomorrow. We're busy here but we're working some overtime and although we miss you, we will have all the toys ready for Christmas. Peako the pup is sitting along side me and his tail is wagging a mile a minute."

"Pet him for me," Juniperperper said. "Here is Jinkersnipes. He wants to say hello."

Jinkersnipes got on the phone and said, "Santa, how are you? Can we go out tonight?"

"Hold on, Jinkersnipes," Santa said. "First, you did fine today and certainly you can go out tonight. Where will you go?"

"Well, Santa," Jinkersnipes replied. "Juniperperper has a date with Julia June and I'm having dinner with U.B. Fruitful and D. Lightful Wynter."

"Tell them I said hello," Santa said. "And tell Juniperperper to have a fine time."

"Bye, now, Santa," Jinkersnipes said.

Juniperperper took the phone and said, "Sure you don't mind if we go out?"

Santa laughed and replied, "You have fun. It isn't often you get to New York so enjoy yourselves. And, I'm confident that we will win the case. You're doing fine."

"Hi," she said. "My you look handsome tonight."

Juniperperper blushed and said, "You look good, too, Julia June. I never saw you in an evening dress before."

He held out his arm and she took it. They went to the lobby and then took a taxi to the El Tora.

They had a huge dinner of lobster butterglow, crinkle fried potatoes, diced peas and corn. For dessert, they had flowing chocolate iced igloos.

"Mmmm, that was good," Julia June said.

"I enjoyed it, too," Juniperperper said.

They sat back and enjoyed the stage show, Higgins Hewitt and his Hamstring. The magician, Bobby Urban and his disappearing Imperial Crab also was featured and both elves enjoyed the show.

"I have a busy day ahead of me," Juniperperper said. "But I certainly enjoyed tonight."

"We'll have to do it again," Julia June said.

"Yes, maybe when we get back to the North Pole we can visit the Crystal Forest Plaza together. It would be fun."

"I'd like that," Julia June said as she took Juniperperper's hand.

They decided to walk back to the hotel and, hand in hand, they strolled the streets of New York as a soft snow began to fall.

He left Julia June at her door and returned to his room. Jinkersnipes was sitting there. "You look like you had a great time," he said. "And I did, too."

The girls, Vicki Close, 16, Patricia Caffrey, 17, Susan Caffrey, 15, and the dog were assisted by 12 members of the San Dimas Sheriff's Mountain Rescue Team. The operation required about two hours and lasted into darkness, deputies said. There were no injuries.

Satellite completes 10th year

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The Pioneer 6 space probe, originally designed to beam information to earth for only six months, completed its 10th functioning year recently.

The tiny, drum-shaped spacecraft, launched Dec. 16, 1965 by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has whirled through more than 6 billion miles of space, sending back information about the sun, its effect on earth, and interplanetary space.

The $20 million Pioneer 6 and five subsequent Pioneer space probes have all outlasted their expected potential and are still in use. About three feet long by three feet wide, the 140-pound Pioneer 6, has circled the sun 12 times during its journey.

The probe has helped predict solar storms which affect the earth's climate and can disrupt compass navigation and radio and television communications. It also has sent back information about the million-mile-per hour solar "wind" of charged particles and the corona, a very hot body of tenuous gas surrounding the sun.

Scientists at NASA's Ames Research Center here estimate the probe has beamed about 50 billion bits of information back to earth. It serves about 1,000 primary users, including commercial airlines, power and communications companies and the military.

$1 million bail stands, says judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Municipal Court judge has refused to lower the $1 million bail for Richard Keats, the alleged mastermind of a scheme to defraud the city treasury.

Keats' attorney, Matthew Segall, told Judge Dickran Tevrizian Jr. on Tuesday there was "no question" Keats was trying to evade authorities when he was arrested last month in Puerto Rico.

"But I ask the court to set a reasonable bail, not an outrageous bail," Segall said.

But the judge countered by saying there was more than $902,000 missing in the case and he believed the $1 million bond was not unreasonable.

Keats, 39, pleaded innocent to charges of forgery, grand theft and conspiracy in the case. He allegedly masterminded the scheme to cash 18 stolen city checks. Nine have been accounted for, including one which was cashed in Europe for $902,000.

SS Catalina target of tax suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city of Los Angeles has filed suit against the owners of the SS Catalina, asking that the "Great White Steamship" be sold if necessary to pay back docking fees.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court on Tuesday and claimed the ship owed more than $36,000 in back fees for its berth at San Pedro. The suit said the mooring fees for the 285-foot ship have been $115 a day since August 1974 and that as of Nov. 18 $46,508 was due.

Authorities said the owners paid $10,071 after the ship was rented to film portions of the film, "Farewell My Lovely."

TV hit

PARIS (AP) — Every Wednesday evening 11 million Frenchmen switch on the tube to watch four-year-old episodes of Mannix, which along with movies and Peyton Place are the current favorites on prime time French television.

"The success of Mannix is crazy," said Daniel Martinet, of the Center for the Study of Opinion which compiles TV ratings. "People like it more than anything else except films and the news. As for Peyton Place, we're probably the last country in the world to see it, and yet it's climbing rapidly."

The state broadcasting monopoly known as the "ORTF", created by the Gaullists in 1964, was dissolved by the new regime of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at the end of 1974. It had been plagued by strikes and political interference, and its financial affairs were in such a mess no one could pin down the deficit.

It was replaced by three TV companies and one radio organization, all supposedly financially independent but all still owned by the state. The idea was to free French television from political domination by the government and improve its quality all round.

Government spokesman Andrew Rossi said recently, "The reform of the (broadcasting system) is perhaps the most important one affecting political mores in the past 30 years." But the politicians are still grumbling, and a recent poll showed that half the viewers felt nothing has changed from the days of the ORTF.

An hour of Mannix costs $7,100 to air, including French dubbing. It consistently is watched by twice as many people as an hour of French drama, which officials said costs $114,000.

Pro-and anti-government forces in the National Assembly recently refused to approve the broadcasting budget for 1976, essentially because each claimed the other was getting more air time. A second debate is scheduled.

There have been innovations since television was decentralized. The Communist and Socialist opposition now gets in the news, with seven hours of combined air time in the first half of the year against nine hours for the president, the premier and their supporters.

There was a successful late night variety program from the top of an alp, and debates on homosexuality. The third channel, which shows the most movies, has broadened its scope to show total nudity "where artistically valid" and will continue doing so despite some protest letters.

The most successful local show is a Sunday lunchtime bit called "The Little Reporter" which spoofs current events and personalities. Its star, Jacques Martin, once stuck out his tongue at the Communists.

"Maybe the public needed this kind of show, to have some fun based on the news, which is not very funny nowadays," said Bernard Lion, co-producer of the show. Thirty-eight per cent of France's 34 million viewers watch the show, almost as many as see Mannix or virtually all of the 459 movies broadcast each year, but its high ratings are boosted by the fact that it has no competition in its time-slot.

But the ratings of other home-grown programs are low. Systeme 2, a centerpiece show of song, dance and talk, drew a rating of 25 per cent in prime time recently, while a 30-year-old John Wayne movie on another channel attracted 37.5 per cent of the viewing public, according to the Center for the Study of Opinion.

A debate on Spain at the height of the Franco crisis last month drew a rating of 14 per cent, while on another channel "Dodge City" drew 37 per cent.

"Peyton Place started with about 17 per cent, but now is much higher," said a center official. Such 1960s U.S. favorites as The Untouchables and The Wild Wild West are also in great demand, while French serials rarely rate higher than 20 per cent, he said.

Marcel Jullian, described by some press reports as the most dynamic of the new TV chiefs, was asked to describe the results of the reform and what remains to be done.

He replied, through a spokesman: "It is very difficult to express a comparative viewpoint between the old ORTF and the new companies. It would be almost indecent for me personally to do so since I am head of one of the companies."

And California's lawmakers spend more days working on legislative business than their colleagues in 47 other states, the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures reported.

The conference said total compensation to California legislators, including some expenses, was an average of $82,640 for assemblymen and $71,160 for senators for the years 1973 and 1974.

The figures were based on a two-year average in order to make comparisons between states which have annual legislative sessions and those which meet every other year.

At the bottom of the pay and compensation list were New Hampshire, paying $200 to legislators every two years; Rhode Island, $600 every two years, and Utah, $3,200.

The compensation to California legislators included base salaries of $21,120 per year — which was second to New York's $23,500 — plus $30 per day expense allowances and up to $800 per month per legislature for office expenses and extra salaries.

The total does not include the up to $4,556 per month staff salaries and free state cars and gasoline and telephone credit cards. The conference said California is the only state giving legislators cars and credit cards.

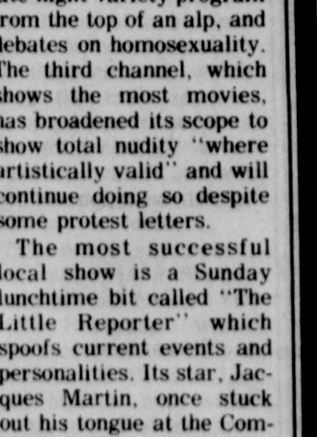
Others at the bottom of the compensation scale are New Hampshire, $100 per year salary and no expense allowance; Rhode Island $300 per year salary and $5 a day expenses during sessions; and Utah, $1,000 a year salary and $25 daily expenses.

The 16-page "research memorandum" concluded that although gross compensation to state legislators has risen substantially in recent years, state lawmakers "have not fared well" when the increases are compared with inflation and the increased time in session.

The conference, based in Colorado, also compared the length of regular and special legislative sessions in each state.

On that scale, Massachusetts ranked first with 294 days a year, followed by South Carolina, 252 days, California, 250, Michigan, 249, Missouri, 235, Arizona, 233.

Shortest sessions were Alabama, 41 days a year, Kentucky, 49, North Dakota, 53, Wyoming, 60, Nevada, 74.



In the 17th and 18th centuries the use of the word "amuse" was "to divert the attention of" or "to mislead". When a tactician of the period of the Revolutionary War sent out a force to amuse the enemy, his intentions were no more humorous than those of today's commander who plans a diversion, The World Almanac notes.

S.B., Poly clash in finals tonight

Santa Barbara nips Dorsey

By DOUG SPOON
PB Correspondent

Santa Barbara High Coach Jack Trigueiro summed up the excitement and tension of Wednesday night's semifinal action in the San Dimas Tournament of Champions in one simple sentence: "It was a great job under extreme pressure."

Trigueiro was talking about his team's last-second victory over Dorsey High, a 44-43 nailbiter that puts the Dons into the finals tonight at 8:30 in the Cal Poly gym.

However, the same could apply to the previous game, in which the Long Beach Poly Jackrabbits broke open a tight contest with Verbum Dei to earn a 57-40 win and the other spot in the finals.

"We were just doing all we could to win the game," said Poly Coach Ron Palmer as his team awaited the outcome of the Santa Barbara-Dorsey game to see who the Jackrabbits would face in the finals. As it turned out, the Poly players had to wait even beyond the final buzzer of that game to find out who their opponent would be.

Santa Barbara entered the fourth quarter of their game with a 35-34 edge on Dorsey. The teams played head to head throughout the final period and with 44 seconds remaining Santa Barbara had the ball with the score 43-43.

Steve Crandell's shot was blocked by Santa Barbara's Eric Gaines with 19 seconds left, and Dorsey gained possession of the ball and called a time out. Dorsey worked for the last shot in regulation time, but Santa Barbara guard Geoff Shelton stole a bad pass with four seconds left and was fouled on a shot at the buzzer.

Shelton missed the first free throw, but overcame the pressure to hit the next one, giving the victory to a team that displayed as much poise at the end as it did all through the game.

"You've got to give credit to the five starters," noted Trigueiro. "They all played almost the entire game and just gutted it out. The defensive pressure was fantastic."

Tonight's championship game at Kellogg Gym will be preceded by a battle for third place between Dorsey and Verbum Dei, beginning at 7. The consolation game at 5:30 will pit Gardena, which beat San Dimas 48-40 Wednesday, against Pasadena, 60-38 victors over Workman.

The title game matches a Santa Barbara squad which had a record of 24-2 last year against a Long Beach Poly team that went 22-5. As if the teams could top Wednesday night's suspense, both coaches look for a tight game tonight.

"We match up well against any opponent," says Palmer. "We can make adjustments, and the experience should help us in league play."

Santa Barbara showed that it can also make adjustments. The Dons improved a first half shooting percentage of 48 to 53 per cent in the second half, when it counted most. But perhaps the most amazing statistic was the fact that the Dons committed only four fouls in the entire game.

James Hunter was high point man in the game with 12 for Santa Barbara. Crandell added 11 and Ed White chipped in 10. Daniel Ramsey and Gaines led Dorsey with 10 points each.

Long Beach Poly relied on its tough defense to hold Verbum Dei in the second half and trigger the Jackrabbits' fast break. Poly moved from a 24-21 halftime deficit to a 33-30 lead at the end of three quarters and won the game going away.

Clyde Johnson and John Nash shared top scoring honors for the Jackrabbits. Each had 14 points, followed by Mike Wiley with nine. Poly shot 48 per cent from the floor compared to 29 per cent for the Eagles.

Woes mount in Ram camp

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Football teams are said to be "injury-riddled" if they have a couple of starters out. The term then hardly suffices to describe the woes of the Los Angeles Rams.

Should the Rams be hit by more injuries in Saturday's National Football League game against the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers, for instance, the Los Angeles backfield could feature Rob Scribner at quarterback, Rod Phillips at fullback, and Cullen Bryant at running back.

Although Bryant is a bonafide running back, Scribner hasn't played quarterback since college — when he was second-string at UCLA — and Phillips has recently been a backup tight end. Although that backfield is theoretical, if any Ram backs get hurt against the Steelers, the trio might fill those positions.

As it now stands, Los Angeles could go into the nationally televised game missing seven of its original starters, and its reserve ranks are thinning, too. The club Wednesday announced that reserve running back John Cappelletti has mononucleosis and will not play.

Already out for the season are cornerbacks Al Clark and Charlie Stukes, tight end Bob Klein, defensive tackle Larry Brooks and running back Jim Bertelsen.

Also ailing but listed as probable are wide receiver Ron Jessie, defensive tackle Merlin Olsen, linebacker Isiah Robertson, offensive tackle Doug France and offensive guard Joe Scibelli.

Second-year quarterback Ron Jaworski will start if Harris is unable, and Scribner, who is starting in Bertelsen's running back spot, will be the backup quarterback.

A healthy Lawrence McCutcheon will start at fullback, with Phillips, a free agent rookie out of Jackson State, his backup. Bryant will rest Scribner at running back.

A team spokesman said Harris practiced Wednesday, but did not throw, and that Cowan received whirlpool treatment for his ankle. The spokesman said the chance that either would play against the Steelers is "50-50."

Rams Coach Chuck Knox said after learning Cappelletti would be unavailable, "This is another big blow to our football team. With Bertelsen and Cappelletti both out, it really leaves us short-handed at running back."

The Steelers, who match a 12-1 record against the Rams 11-2, appear to be in relatively good shape for the contest. Defensive stalwart Joe Greene has missed three games with a pinched nerve and is questionable.

Steeler Coach Chuck Noll said in Pittsburgh that he will "use some people who haven't played much" against the Rams, getting them tuned up in case he needs them in the playoffs.

Looking ahead to the playoffs, Knox was concerned more with basics. "I just hope," he said, "we have enough healthy bodies to suit up."

No more expansion for 1976

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League has closed the door on expanding into Birmingham, Ala., and Memphis, Tenn., for the 1976 season, but refused to lock out the cities for future consideration.

"We had no negatives to Birmingham and Memphis," said Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and chairman of the NFL Expansion Committee. "Our problems are expansion per se—not these two cities."

Representatives of Memphis and Birmingham, hoping to join the NFL for the 1976 season, were told Wednesday that they would have to wait, and even then are not sure bets to becoming members of the league.

"The people on our Expansion Committee are pro-expansion," said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "The problem is committing now."

John Bassett, president of the Memphis Grizzlies said he was not satisfied with the committee's reasoning.

"We will ask that the matter be put to a vote of the NFL members and we sincerely hope the league as a whole will not accept this recommendation. We feel the committee has done a great disservice to the American football public and especially to the Mid-South community, which has shown tangible support and enthusiasm for our application," Bassett said in a statement.

"In the meantime, we and our counsel will explore all available options for the Grizzlies in connection with this application."

Either team would need approval of 20 of the 26 present club owners.

Memphis and Birmingham were the strongest members of the now-defunct World Football League. When the WFL folded, the two teams applied for expansion franchises in the NFL.

Rozelle said any expansion plans by the NFL must clear three hurdles.

"The first hurdle is the state of mind," the commissioner said, referring to problems affecting the national economy, professional sports and the NFL in particular. He said the other hurdles were the selection of cities and ownership in those cities.

"It's safe to say Memphis and Birmingham did not clear that first big hurdle," Rozelle said.

"Sports leagues have folded and contracted, teams have folded and other leagues have abandoned expansion plans. This, plus litigation that we're not involved in, has created a cloud of uncertainty among the league owners," he said.

Also working against Memphis and Birmingham's admittance into the NFL is the fact that two new teams—Seattle, Wash., and Tampa, Fla.—are joining the league for the 1976 season.

Chaffey Invitational

PCC upsets Mounties

By MIKE RAWLINSON
PB Staff Writer

Defending tournament champion Mt. San Antonio College was one of four South Coast Conference teams to drop out of contention for the title in the 35th Chaffey Invitational at Chaffey College in Alta Loma Wednesday.

MSAC was back in action this morning at 9:30 against Glendale on the consolation side.

MSAC's loss was a major upset in the tournament, but the Mounties shared the same fate as host Chaffey (a 97-83 loser to Golden West) and Citrus (a 67-54 loser to Mesa). Chaffey faced Grossmont this afternoon at 2:30 p.m. and Citrus tangled with Orange Coast at 11:10 a.m. San Bernardino and Fullerton clashed at 12:50 p.m. to complete the consolation quarterfinals pairings.

Mesa (4-5), was the lone South Coast Conference entry to make the championship quarterfinals this evening against El Camino at 4:10 p.m. Other South Coast losers were Orange Coast (82-68 loss to El Camino), Fullerton (98-70 loss to L.A. Harbor), Grossmont (67-57 loser to L.A. Valley).

Championship quarterfinal games this evening paired East L.A. and L.A. Harbor at 5:50 p.m., Pasadena and Riverside at 7:30 p.m. and Golden West and L.A. Valley at 9:10 p.m.

Golden West (9-2), Pasadena (6-3) and L.A. Harbor (7-1) emerged as the class of the tournament Wednesday. Most observers were tabbing Golden West, the Huntington Beach team, as the one to beat.

The Rustlers walked by Chaffey, which dropped its eighth game in a row without a victory. Chaffey center Mike Toomay played well for the Panthers with 20 points and 10 rebounds. Forward Brian Jacobs led both teams with 23 points and nine rebounds. Golden West had seven players in double figures. Guard Scott Clark topped the list with 15 points and center Paul Schillecki had 14 along with forward Lynn Wilson.

Montreal tough on road

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We just seem to play better on the coast," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden after his team eked out a 2-1 win over the Kings, their ninth home-ice loss in 13 meetings with the Canadiens.

Montreal's 35th straight West Coast victory Wednesday wasn't as free-wheeling as some have been, the 9-0 season opener with the Kings, for example, and Los Angeles coach Bob Pulford said his team played like winners.

"You can't ask more of a team than the way we played tonight. If we continue to play that way, we'll win a lot of games," Pulford said. "We played a pretty good game. The puck hit the post a couple of times. I thought we could have gotten a tie in the third period."

With Los Angeles down a man due to a penalty against defenseman Bob Murdoch, Montreal Defenseman Guy Lapointe fired in a 50-footer on a power play at 1:01 of the second period.

Then Yvonne Lambert connected on a goal that flew into the net after bouncing off the stick of King's goalie Rogie Vashon at 12:11 of the period on Lambert's 19th goal of the season.

Venasky, when asked the difference between this game and the Kings' last game, in which they lost to the Philadelphia Flyers, 6-4, said:

Dryden summed it up:

"From where I was, it was a very well played game. This is the kind of (tight-checking) game you expect from the Kings."

Ashe ranked best player

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe has been ranked the No. 1 male tennis player by the United States Tennis Association, it was announced Wednesday.

Ashe, 32, won 10 tournaments during the past year, including Wimbledon and the World Championship of Tennis. Ashe, also ranked No. 1 in 1968, was fifth in 1974.

Jimmy Connors, 23, ranked No. 1 last year in the United States and the world, was second on the strength of his nine titles, including the Dewar Cup, South African Open and U.S. Indoor championships. He lost to Ashe in the final at Wimbledon.

The USTA rankings, subject to a 30-day appeal, are based on computer readouts submitted by the Association of Tennis Professionals, governing body of men touring professionals. Ashe was awarded 12.477 points by the computer.

Veeck and Richards are together again

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Richards hasn't donned a baseball manager's uniform in 14 years and Bill Veeck hasn't owned a club in the same length of time. But both have returned to those roles with the Chicago White Sox in hope of rekindling the winning ways they developed with the "Go-Go" Sox of two decades ago.

New owner Veeck appointed Richards on Wednesday to the managerial post, and despite his lengthy absence from the dugout, Veeck said the 67-year-old Richards still is "the best I've ever seen in action as a manager."

Chuck Tanner, who managed the Sox for the last five seasons and still has three years left on his contract, was invited to stay with the club in any other capacity he wishes.

But Tanner, named manager of the year in 1972, reportedly is considering the same spot with Charles O. Finley's Oakland A's. Tanner said he would make his decision within the next few days.

Richards, a native of Waxahachie, Tex., also managed the Baltimore Orioles and served in front-office positions with major league clubs in Baltimore, Houston and Atlanta.

He broke into the majors as a catcher with Brooklyn in 1932 and is considered a genius at handling pitchers.

A strong advocate of speed, good defense and fine pitching, Richards has been out of baseball since 1972 and last served as a manager with Baltimore in 1961. His return came at the behest of Veeck, 61, who is returning to the game for the first time since selling the White Sox in 1961.

"Several years ago, I made a half promise that if Bill ever owned a ball club again I'd manage it for him," Richards said at a jam-packed news conference.

Richards will be the oldest manager in the majors next year but he said his age would not make a difference.

Veeck, who also will serve as general manager, said he wanted a manager he could feel comfortable with in the dugout.

"Because the coming season is so important to me, I feel I have to go with people I know well for the coming year," Veeck said. "...We've been dear friends for so many years. Maybe you can call it (Richards' hiring) my security blanket."

Veeck, considered a hustler on the sports scene whose past promotions have rankled the circle of usually staid baseball owners, officially became owner of the White Sox on Tuesday. His bid to buy the team, an American League charter member in financial difficulty, was rejected twice by owners before being approved last week.

In 1959 Veeck also bought the White Sox. That was the year the club won its first pennant in 40 years. But health problems forced Veeck to sell his interest in 1961.

The 1959 title team was molded in much the same way that Richards formed the White Sox when he served as manager from 1951 to 1954. Attendance at White Sox Park climbed over the million mark each year during his tenure for the first time in the club's history, as Richards led the White Sox to the club's best winning seasons since the 1930s.

USC names grid aides

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Paul Hackett and Bob Toledo will join the coaching staff of new University of Southern California football coach John Robinson as assistants.

Hackett, 28, will coach USC quarterbacks. As assistant coach at the University of California, he guided Steve Bartkowski, the nation's leading collegiate passer in 1974. This year, he coached Joe Roth, who led the Pacific-8 conference in passing.

Toledo, 29, head coach at the University of California at Riverside, will be in charge of USC's defensive secondary.

As quarterback at San Francisco State, Toledo was a college division All-American and the nation's leader in total offense in 1967, when he set eight NCAA College Division records that still stand.

Toledo's UC-Riverside squad was undefeated this season, finishing first in the California Collegiate Athetic Association.

Pasadena stole the ball almost at will on the Mounties in the first half, building an 18 point advantage by halftime. It was the second loss in a row for MSAC which was 6-2 going into this morning's game.

Pasadena's Cooper was top scorer with 29 points and MSAC's Harding was the leading rebounder with 21 in first round action. Cooper hit 10 field goals and 9 of 9 from the free throw line to blitz the Mounties. Harding controlled the boards in both halves. He had 12 of his 19 points in the first half.

Gymnasts meet at Poly clinic

A four-day clinic for local women gymnasts, sponsored by the Cal Poly women gymnastic team, will begin Friday, December 26 and continue through December 29 on the Cal Poly campus.

The event, called a "concentrated workout" by its organizer Bruce Coulter, coach of Cal Poly's team, has been organized in response to a fast-growing interest in the sport, especially for women.

Some 150 women from local schools and private gymnastic clubs are expected to attend the 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily sessions, which will be directed by seven of the Pomona Valley's coaches in the field and assisted by members of the Cal Poly team. Beginning, intermediate and advanced instruction will be given in tumbling and in four Olympic competive events — floor exercise; balance beam; uneven parallel bars; and vaulting.

The Cal Poly gymnastic team, with a roster of 15 members, is in their second competitive season. They recently competed in an eight team invitational at Long Beach State where they finished second in Class II competition.

Coach Coulter, who came to Cal Poly in 1970, competed in gymnastics at Cal State, Los Angeles from 1965-69 and was on NCAA national champion in vaulting in 1968. He says that the clinic offers participants the chance to work with a wide range of instructors in "a highly charged atmosphere of learning."

Information about the competition can be obtained by calling the Athletic Department at (714) 598-4611.

Poly holds tourney

First round pairings are: USC vs. Cal State Los Angeles at 10:30, Long Beach State vs. Fresno State at 12:30 p.m., UC Santa Barbara vs. Biola at 2:30 p.m. and host Cal Poly Pomona vs. Cal Poly SLO at 4:30.

Azusa Tourney

Cavs win, 'Pack beaten

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

AZUSA — The Montclair High Cavaliers upended the Royal Oak Romans 67-54, in opening round play Wednesday at Azusa High's Basketbal Tournament but the Claremont Wolfpack was stunned by the Gladstone Gladiators 69-65.

Montclair will be playing San Marino (a 62-46 first-round victor over host Azusa) tonight at 8 p.m. in the championship bracket. Claremont will face Rosemead at 3:15 p.m. in a consolation tilt.

"We played three good quarters of basketball," said Cavs coach Landon Moore. "We had a fairly balanced offense, but we made some dumb fouls."

Montclair did play good basketball for three quarters, and it was fortunate for Cavs' fans because they were outscored 21-8 in the final quarter.

The Cavaliers built up a big enough lead in the first three frames so really the fourth quarter didn't hurt them that much, as it gave coach Moore a chance to look at some substitutes.

The Cavaliers, 2-3 record, had three men in double figures for the game. Darrin Pierce was high point man with 18, ten in the first half. Steve Hossler tallied 17 points, 11 in the initial half. Substitute Scott Arthur wound up with 12 points.

The Romans were paced by forward Bill Cavanaugh who finished with 25 points. Cavanaugh drilled home 18 points in the fourth quarter, out of the Romans' 21 total points.

In the first game of the tournament, Claremont was upset by Gladstone in a sloppy, yet close contest.

In a scrimmage game earlier this year, the 'Pack ripped the same Gladstone squad. However, coach Jack Smith of Claremont put it best when he said, "We just didn't come to play. We were not playing all out, and we're not going to win many games if we play like this."

Gladstone held only a 17-13 lead at the end of one quarter, and a 33-30 margin at the end of the half. Coach Smith brought in cagey sophomore center Derek Britton, and the 6-foot-7 man started to bring the 'Pack to live.

Britton led the Claremont attack in the third quarter as the 'Pack outscored the Gladiators in the frame 23 to 16, with 11 points, to give the visitors a 53-49 lead at the end of the quarter.

The Gladiators then fought back in the final period to get within a point (61-60) with 3:58 to go in the game. Then Gladstone outscored the Claremonters 7-4, in 3 minutes and 6 seconds.

Down by two with just 15 seconds to play, the 'Pack tried to get the tying bucket, but after a missed attempt, Jeff Rodine made a basket with three seconds to go — only to see it taken away because of his own offensive foul in the effort. Gladstone's Tim Crawford iced the verdict with a pair of free throws.

Rob Fossum had 12 rebounds for Claremont, while teammate Britton hauled down 11 caroms, nine in his sparkling second half. As a team, the 'Pack had 36 rebounds to the opponents' 17.

Three SAL teams fall

San Antonio League basketball teams had a rough time of it in tournament action Wednesday.

Both Damien and Ganesha lost their games in the Alhambra Tourney, while Upland fell in the Ramona Tourney.

Damien was beaten by San Gabriel 76-66 in a championship bracket affair while Ganesha lost to Perris 69-66 in a consolation bracket contest and was eliminated from the tourney. Upland dropped its Ramona opener to San Gorgonio 87-58.

Walnut and Ontario Christian had better luck in their respective tournaments. Walnut beat Brethren 68-60 to stay alive in the Laguna Beach Tourney consolation bracket while OCHS easily won its opener in the Notre Dame Tourney 73-34 over Lutheran High of Orange.

In the lone non-tourney game played Wednesday, Webb had no trouble against visiting Pilgrim High, downing the Los Angeles-based school 65-31.

Damien put up a good struggle against San Gabriel, a CIF 3-A finalist a year ago, but the Spartans could not overcome the absence of forward Jon Kolodge (out with an ankle injury). Adding to the Spartan misfortunes was the fact that two of its starters, Mike O'Leary and Bill Duffy, fouled out early in the fourth quarter of the game.

Even without Kolodge and the foul problems, Damien led at one point for a brief period early in the second half, but a balanced S.G. attack proved too much for the locals.

George Terry led the Giants with 22 points, while center Les Harris added 12 and pulled down 11 rebounds. However, Perris' center Thurman Henderson and guard Andre Milner combined to score 53 of their team's 69 points.

Damien (now 5-4 on the year) will play Bell Gardens today at 4:45 p.m. at Alhambra hoping to advance into Friday's third place finals. Ganesha was eliminated with its loss, the Giants' record falling to 4-4 on the season.

San Gorgonio blew Upland out of the game with a big third quarter and went on to score an easy win in the Ramona opener for both schools.

Scot forward Brian Patterson put together his best game of the year with 17 points, but numerous Upland turnovers and a balanced San Gorgonio attack spelled the difference.

The Highlanders will be trying to avoid elimination from the tourney field today when they face Apple Valley at 4:30 p.m. in a consolation bracket contest.

Walnut built up a big 42-24 halftime lead against Brethren and coasted from there to the victory. Jeff Davis led the way with 17 points, while center Hans Meyer added 12 and pulled down 16 rebounds.

The Mustangs, now 3-4 on the year, will try to reach Saturday's consolation finals today when they face St. Monica at 4:30 p.m.

Ontario Christian built up a huge 64-14 lead after three quarters en route to the easy win over Orange Lutheran. John VanderSchaaf led the way with 23 points, teammate Hank Bouwman chipping in with 14.

OCHS, now 4-2 on the year, will take today off and resume play in the Notre Dame Tourney Friday at 6:30 p.m. vs. Aquinas. Aquinas won its tourney opener Wednesday 57-42 over San Jacinto.

Webb School evened its hoop record at 4-4 for the year with the triumph over Pilgrim. The Gauls started slow and led only 12-10 at the end of the first quarter, but they exploded to a 35-15 halftime margin and coasted from there.

Forward Marshall Morton tossed in 18 points, center Doug Seaborne added 14 and Kerry Tims 14 to pace the Webb attack. Seaborne also had eight rebounds and blocked six shots.

The Gauls will now be out of cage action until Jan. 13, when they will open Arrowhead League play at Notre Dame.

Edgewood Tourney

'Cats, Chino drop openers

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

WEST COVINA — Both local entries in the Edgewood High School Tournament dropped opening round games in action Wednesday night at Edgewood High.

Hacienda League representative Bonita was bested by Neff 61-46 and the San Antonio League's Chino lost to a powerful West Covina five 65-41.

Neff finished the second quarter with six straight points, finding itself on top 24-17 at intermission.

The Trojans started to run away with the game in the third period, building up a 16 point advantage that Bonita cut to 12 (41-29) at the end of the stanza.

The Bearcats pulled to within eight points at 51-43 midway in the fourth but Neff finished strong for the victory.

Bonita (3-3) went without two of its usual starters. Center Steve Sly was sidelined due to a bad cold and forward Scott Johnson was not with the team due to personal reasons.

McCarthy was the leading scorer with 13 points followed by teammate John Spinosa and Bonita's David Drury who had 12 each.

West Covina has dominated the tournament since winning the first year and three more times after that.

Chino (1-4) was trying to repeat after winning the title two years ago. The Cowboys have been runner-ups three times and copped the consolation crown once.

The Chargers did just that in "Charging" to a 9-0 lead before Chino could score with 3:16 remaining in the first quarter. West Covina finished on top 14-6.

The Cowboys lost more ground in the second quarter due to balanced scoring from WC. Four Chargers scored four points in the second period to take a 34-18 lead into the locker room.

The trail however, ended in a dead end as the Chargers rolled up a 21-point lead with just over six minutes to play.

West Covina's Mike Evans lead the "charge" with 16 points and 12 rebounds. Teammates Mark Adams and Tom Robinson added 12 and 11 points respecively.

Chino was lead by guards Joe Pickens and Scott who had 12 apiece.

Cal Poly faces dangerous foe

SAN DIEGO — Although happy to be back in California, Cal Poly's basketball team will be remaining on the road for awhile.

Poly is just off an 0-5 trip against the likes of Houston, Texas, Louisville, North Dakota and North Dakota State.

"If we don't play well, we'll get beat," Hogan said. "Just because we've been playing the big boys doesn't mean we're going to beat everybody else."

Point Loma, who is especially tough to beat at home, is 4-2 for the season after Tuesday's 95-85 loss at Whittier. Among the Crusaders' victims is Pomona-Pitzer by a 62-46 score.

Poly's offense has been led by guard Joe Sills and forward Jack Gamulin with respective 22.4 and 20.0 averages. Forward Paul Newton is the Broncos' top rebounder with a 9.9 average.

FIRST EFFORT IS 69

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Fred Bradberry, 28-year-old assistant pro at the Everglades Club in Palm Beach, Fla., had never seen the Mid Pines course here until the start of the eighth annual Izod International Invitational. The first day he shot a three-underpar 69 on five birdies and two bogies.

Second day, Bradberry shot a 76, missing par because two of his long drives found him practically stymied behind pine trees. Despite offers for backing on the PGA tour, Bradberry, recently wed, will remain at the Everglades.

Toepel leads golf tourney

Canadian John Toepel, vacationing in the Southland, has found valley golf courses to his liking, especially the narrow 6,500 yards of Via Verde Country Club.

Toeple fashioned a brilliant five under par 67 to take a one-stroke lead in the $12,000 Southern California Open Wednesday. Steve Bogan, formerly of Covina, shot a four under 68, and three smooth swingers — Howie Johnson, Allan Tapie and Jim McKeighen — were tied with 69s.

Defending champ Jerry Barber was tied at 70 with former USC All American Craig Stadler and Riverside's young pro Gary McCord.

Bob Risch of Diamond Bar and San Bernardino's Dennie Meyer shot 71s on the first day of the 54-hole tourney.

Darkness closed in quickly on the field of 176 players, and several foursomes were forced to quit with from one to three holes left to play. They will finish those holes today.

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado & Willy Keo

HARDLY HAS THE DIN OF COLLEGE SOCCER EEN DIMMED and already the high school boys are ying into the theater (an antiquated expression with day's soccer balls being made of various updated aterials) on high school fields all over the Pomona alley.

A rash of pre-season tournaments are on the December ate all of which affords the coaches an early insight into st what they have, and what they don't have, and what ey are up against in opponents.

Riding high on the tournament list is the big annual at uth Torrance where the hosts are again rated strong ough to make the final as they showed last Friday nite hen they won by 2-0 over our classy Claremont Hi team.

Last year Claremont finished third to champs Santa arbara and runners-up South Torrance in the holiday urney and pre-season rankings find them locked into the me slots. Santa Barbara won the tournament last year addition to the CIF title . . . even taking Claremont in a e-season game after they had lost a player . . . doing e job with 10 men. The Santa Barbarans could repeat. hey are strong.

The South Torrance shindig gets under way this week-nd coming . . . with Claremont going vs. Beverly Hills, nd Damien heading into troubled waters with a first ound clash vs. 9th ranked Newport Harbor. We'll know ore when it's over!

THE TOUGHEST FUTURE AHEAD lies in the path of hmad Badawi's Ganesha High boys who will have to ollide with the powerful and second ranked South orrance team in the opening match of the Damien ourney set for Dec. 27, 29 and 30. Damien coach Al istri is the chief worrier for the annual classic and has rought the event up to a 32 team affair for this year. uch more about that one next week in the Daily Blast . . stay tuned.

CIF RANKINGS of the moment find Santa Barbara on op and South Torrance 2nd. Claremont holds 3rd spot and an Gabriel (who already fell to Claremont 1-0 two weeks go) rides in the 4th saddle. The only other Pomona alley school in the top ten is Chaffey, who won its league title last year and point proudly to No. 10 spot in CIF's iew. Coach Stepanian's attitude is to go after the strong ones . . . which he is doing in pre-season and doing well. Chaffey goes into tournament action in the Damien challenge and first foe is strong Garey High of Pomona. Ray Salcedo has come over from Riverside to guide the Garey kickers this year with the assistance of the experienced Joe Navarrete. It looks exciting from every angle.

Pomona High looks stronger than it has been in its three-year look at soccer. British coach Ron Vosper is showing the way for Pomona as he earlier did as assistant coach for Claremont-Mudd this season.

Buddy Ayala's Chino High has lost sturdy defender Juan Gonzalez to Fullerton but the high scoring Ed Marquez remains to give Chino a worthy reason for being ranked 20th among the 134 or so schools of the CIF.

Webb has moved over to furnish opposition for Chaffey this year in the Citrus Belt League with the Liverpudlian soccer mind of John Heyes guiding Webb destinies.

Montclair coach Bruce Haines will lean heavily on the scoring abilities of Rick Adams in San Antonio League action. Montclair will be absent from the Damien Tourney.

BILL CHENEY'S UPLAND HIGH team rounds out the San Antonio group and have drawn the strong Dos Pueblos team of Santa Barbara for first blood at Damien. There's only a couple weeks of 1975 left but it has all the earmarks of being one Hey of a closer soccerwise. Get yourself . . . and your young players out to dig these tournaments where you'll be exposed to every style of soccer . . . and then when you have them interested, don't forget the great Bayern Munich team (two-time European Cup champs) with the fantastic Franz Beckenbauer and five other World Cup stars in the lineup set for the Coliseum on Jan. 11 at 3 p.m. This is the way ahead for the kids. Get going, Dad! The opposition will be Mexico's candidates for the 1978 World Cup squad. Fine and Dandy is the word for it.

THE OFFENSIVE BUG broke loose last week for Chaffey College when it steamrollered all opposition to win the Pierce College Tournament by heavy scores of 5-2 and 7-1. A hat-trick by Frank Garcia and a hat-trick-plus-one by Frank Garcia gave total scoring honors to Frank Garcia . . . but not without . . . as Coach Rosenveldt' wisdom reminds us . . . a fine bit of defensive work and ball-recovery by the workhorses of the team . . . namely, the midfielders and rear-guard. Well said, coach . . . and Chaffey College has a new cup to display!

PRIOR TO THE CLAREMONT-TORRANCE HIGH game last weekend we had an opportunity to speak to several of our readers who voiced an interest in the latest in the international scene. Well, let's start with the results of the FIFA (soccer's world governing body) World Cup meeting in Guatemala City, where 104 countries applied for participation in the next World Cup to be held in Argentina in 1978. The qualifying rounds leading to the final 16 teams were set up as follows:

EUROPE — GROUP 1 Poland, Portugal, Denmark, Cypress. GROUP 2 Italy, England, Finnland, Luxemburg. GROUP 3 East Germany, Austria, Turkey, Malta. GROUP 4 Netherlands, Belgium, North Ireland, Iceland. GROUP 5 Bulgaria, France, Ireland. GROUP 6 Sweden, Switzerland, Norway. GROUP 7 Scotland, Czechoslovakia, Wales. GROUP 8 Yugoslavia, Spain, Rumania. GROUP 9 Soviet Union, Hungary, Greece.

SOUTH AMERICA — GROUP 1 Brazil, Paraguay, Colombia. GROUP 2 Uruguary, Bolivia, Venezuela. GROUP 3 Chile, Peru, Ecuador.

NORTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA (Only one qualifier from among the 3 groups) — GROUP 1 United States, Mexico, Canada. GROUP 2 Guatemala, Honduras, San Salvador, Costa Rica, Panama, Netherland Antilles. GROUP 3 Cuba, Haiti, Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica, Surinam, Trinidad, Santo Domingo.

ASIA (Only one qualifier with Asia zone winner to meet Oceania group winner) — GROUP 1 Hong Kong, Malaysia, Indonesia, Sri Lanka, Singapor, Thailand. GROUP 2 Israel, Japan, North Korea, South Korea. GROUP 3 Iraq, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Syria.

OCEANIA — Australia, New Zealand, Taiwan.

MEXICO — The Mexican Olympic squad that eliminated the U.S. and Canada from the coming Montreal Olympics is touring Europe in preparation to its next qualifying match against Guatemala, the Central American survivor. Mexico, without two of its starters who were suspended during the Panamerican Games' final against Brazil (before the lights went out) easily polished off the Hamburg All-Stars 5-0.

SPAIN — Real Madird remains undefeated and leads the standings after a scoreless tie against Salamanca after the 13th round. Barcelona defeated Espanol 5-0 with the help of World Cuppers Cruyff and Netzer. Chile's Carlos Caszely made his debut for the losers.

UCR loses in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland State downed California-Riverside 80-75 in a basketball game here Wednesday, led by 25 points and 13 rebounds by junior foreward Jesse Boyd.

It was the 14th consecutive win at home for PSU over two years.

Rose Bowl gets board

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two new solid state computer scoreboards will replace the old ones in the Rose Bowl for the UCLA-Ohio State game New Year's Day, a Pasadena city official said Wednesday.

The signs, which cost $250,000 and will be paid for by advertisers, will transmit scores, statistics and messages, the spokesman said.

James Crain, administrative assistant to the city manager, said Pasadena officials had been discussing new score boards for a number of years, and it was decided to acquire them for the 1976 Rose Bowl.

He said the scoreboards will light up for the first time Dec. 29 for a dedication and test run.

Anesthesiologist on walkout: 'Super Bowl' coming up next

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Our last walkout was the minor leagues," says an anesthesiologist active in the malpractice reform movement, "but this one coming up is the Super Bowl."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., under pressure to find a way of averting the threatened physician walkout on Jan. 1, would put it another way, and yet the meaning is the same.

"We are in a crisis. The present system doesn't have enough money in it to pay for the level of health care we have.

"We're going to have to decide whether we want to reimburse people for pain and suffering (as a result of malpractice), and if so, who's going to pay for it?"

In other words, there has to be a radical cure this time. Last May's walkout by 1,500 Northern California physicians ended when the legislature passed a bill — effective last Friday — to patch up the old system a little. Now, the doctors say, the only way they can stay in practice is a reform of the entire malpractice awards process.

Many others, especially in Southern California where premiums of up to $36,000 a year under new Travelers Insurance Co. rates are due Jan. 1, say they will not renew their insurance. Rather than practice without coverage, they say, they will close their doors.

How extensive the threatened walkout could be is anybody's guess. But county health officials, worried that the brunt of the patient overload would fall on their already strained services, are busy making plans.

"We are seriously concerned. We do believe we will have a pretty serious situation," said Dr. John Affeldt, medical director of the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services.

Limitations in the new malpractice reform law on how much a plaintiff can win are not expected to lower rates for a year or two, if then. The doctors want immediate action — a delay or rollback of the new rates, or a special session of the Legislature to overhaul malpractice laws. Otherwise, they say, the walkout is on.

That could leave thousands of persons without routine medical care. Some areas might be short of emergency treatment. Elective surgery would have to be put off. Since many doctors, especially in Orange County, say they will refuse to see Medi-Cal patients, some way would have to be found to give them medical care.

If enough doctors shut down, the sick would have to turn to the county's health system.

"We have developed a contingency plan that emphasizes first an attempt to absorb the increased emergency load into the county hospitals," said Affeldt.

"If this were not sufficient, we would then try to find a means of providing emergency care at private hospital by contracting with private physicians to work for the county," he said.

Since grassroots groups rather than organized medicine are behind the walkout plans, it is hard to estimate how many of the 10,000 doctors in Los Angeles County plan to shut down. The sentiment in other Southern California counties, where the protest has not really jelled, is even more difficult to assess.

"If I read the climate right, each individual doctor is going through the process of figuring out what he's going to do," said Leon Houck of the Hospital Council of Southern California.

A slowdown is in fact already under way at Santa Monica Medical Center, David Brotman Memorial Hospital in Culver City, and nine hospitals in the San Fernando Valley. Doctors at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center voted to begin a slowdown.

Concerned Physicians for Malpractice Reform, a group claiming to represent 8,000 Los Angeles County physicians and at least 50 per cent of the state's doctors, said many of its members had already begun to turn away new patients.

The effect was being felt by the county's facilities, where Affeldt said emergency rooms and obstetric clinics were seeing an influx of patients.

"The biggest problem," said Dr. Jack Kriegsman of Beverly Hills, "is that there is no word coming from organized medicine. They're crawling in their little cubbyholes so that no one can look at them."

The Los Angeles County Medical Association has said it "recognizes the inalienable right of each individual physician to decide for himself the circumstances under which he can and cannot continue to practice his profession."

The rates at the root of the protest have been imposed by the Travelers Insurance Co., which insures doctors of six Southern California counties through the Southern California Physicians Council (SOCAP).

In an effort to provide cheaper insurance, SOCAP drew up a plan for a physician-owned insurance company that would offer coverage at a lower rate.

That plan, now being studied by the state insurance commissioner, has been heavily criticized by doctors because of its limited coverage. Its most serious deficiency, they say, is that it only covers malpractice claims made during the calendar year of the policy. A good many claims are not filed for years after the treatment in question, and this leaves an unprotected "tail" that must be covered by additional insurance.

For the present, Los Angeles County remained the focus of the intensifying debate. Northern California doctors have until February to pay increased premiums, and reportedly were watching the Southern California protest movement from the sidelines.

"There are 40,000 practicing physicians in the state watching to see what happens down here, and they're becoming angrier," said Kreigsman.

There were few signs of strike activity in other Southern California counties. In San Diego County, however, a poll of county medical society members showed doctors in support of the walkout by a 3-1 margin.

The Orange County protest was centered mainly in the planned refusal of most obstetricians, surgeons and anesthesiologists to treat Medi-Cal patients. That strategy has been adopted by a growing number of doctors, who say the limited reimbursement by the government for Medi-Cal patients isn't worth the time of doctors being charged huge malpractice premiums.

There were no immediate organized walkout plans in Riverside and San Bernardino counties. Dr. Joseph Roberts, a leader of Concerned Physicians, said a slowdown was already beginning in Ventura County.

Two booked in poisoning of bee hives

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Two men have been booked for investigation of vandalism in connection with the poisoning of more than 1,000 bee hives.

Sheriff's investigators said Tuesday that David Graves, 43, the owner of Cuacamonga Honey farms here, and a companion, Gerald Scaff, 24, of Riverside, were booked Monday.

The poisonings had resulted in losses of more than $100,000 at Knoefler Honey Farms, in Fontana, a farm competitive with Graves, authorities said.

Perspiration is a quick method of cooling the body. You can test this by wetting your hands and waving them rapidly. The water evaporates quickly and makes your hands feel cooler.

When your body becomes too warm, the heat-control center of the brain sends signals by way of nerves to the sweat glands in the skin, which are scattered all over the body. The sweat they produce flows out of the openings or pores on the surface of the skin.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

FORTY YEARS after the sale of its screen rights, MGM will film Franz Werfel's historical drama, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh." The book has never been out of publication since it was published in 1933. It recounts the resistance of 5,000 Armenians inhabitants of seven villages on the north coast of Syria against the then-Turkish military government during World War I. Some 1.5 million people died during Turkey's mass deportation of Armenians.

Diane Keaton

Female roles improving

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From Al Pacino's tragic wife in "The Godfather" to Woody Allen's companion in "Sleeper," the amazing range of Diane Keaton's acting talent has kept her busy in today's film world.

So far in her career, she has played the "woman's role" — the patient, forebearing, compliant female dominated by the leading actor. Such seems the fate of actresses in the sexist cinema. But she believes that will change.

"I would like to have something in which I would carry the load, and I think some day I will," she remarks. "I don't want to take over a picture, but I believe women's lives should be shown on the screen. I see that trend coming; more scripts are being written by and for women. Certainly 'Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore' was a giant step toward treatment of the female condition on the screen."

She feels her current film is an advancement. Although James Caan, Michael Caine and Elliott Gould dominate the proceedings in "Harry and Walter Go to New York," Diane as a radical newspaperwoman of 1890 is also one of the planners of a bank robbery in Lowell, Mass.

The other day as she was filming her last scenes in the movie, Diane was vamping the bank president (Charles Durning) as they attended an operetta. The sequence was being filmed by director Mark Rydell at the ornate Mayfair Music Hall a few blocks from the beach in Santa Monica. Diane talked about her career in a landcruiser - dressing-room parked on a busy street. But only after she phoned to check on the condition of her two ailing cats.

She is 29, born in nearby Highland Park, and spent her first 10 years there before moving to Santa Ana in Orange County. She was nutty over dramatics as a kid, attended Santa Ana College and Orange Coast College mainly so she could act in plays. Her aim at Orange Coast was to join a U.S.O. troupe touring the Orient in "Bye Bye Birdie." She succeeded.

"My drama teacher at the college said I should be in New York, where I could get better training," she recalled. "My parents agreed to let me go and they paid my tuition at the Neighborhood Playhouse. They have always been very supportive of my ambitions."

After her studies, she found work in summer stock but little else. She came home discouraged, became more so when she tried to find acting jobs in Hollywood. She learned what many acting hopefuls have discovered: that it is easier to find work in New York.

She was hired for a minor role in the first Broadway production of "Hair" and later inherited a major role. "But I never stripped," she said. "I have nothing against it on principle; I just couldn't do it myself. Never have. I don't know how I would react if I were asked to do it in a film."

Diane had a "small but nice part" in the film "Lovers and Other Strangers," then suffered a long period of unemployment. She managed to survive on residuals from a deodorant commercial. Then she was among the many actresses tested for the Mafia leader's wife in "The Godfather."

"I was surprised when I was cast in the picture," she said, "and a bit startled and fearful of the situation, too. I found myself amid a lot of experienced New York actors, and I didn't have too much confidence in my own abilities."

But she came through with a solid performance in a stunningly acted film. She repeated the role in the "Godfather" sequel, in which she found the wife more defined.

Her liaison wth Woody Allen began when she appeared on Broadway with him in "Play It Again, Sam."

New standards might raise rates by 20%

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Customers of the city Department of Water and Power may face a rate increase of up to 20 per cent within three or four years to meet federal water standards.

A DWP official told the City Council that the amount of the increase was only a "very rough" guess but would be on top of any other rate hike.

Councilman Louis Nowell accused the federal government of forcing the DWP into an "unwarranted $120 million" spending program in order to meet standards of the nea National Safe Drinking Water Act.

The program would clear up sometimes cloudy water received from the Owens River. Nowell said it was "ridiculous" and that "not one single death has been attributed to the city's water supply" since the DWP was formed 73 years ago.

Big merger is proposed

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Directors of General Electric Co. and Utah International Inc. say they have agreed to begin negotiations on a merger of the two firms.

GE is a leading manufacturer of electrical generating equipment, consumer products, industrial components and capital equipment. Utah produces metalurgical coal in Australia and is invovled in the mining of iron ore, copper, steam coal and uranium. The firm also participates in the development of oil and natural gas properties.
